BUILD YOUR NEW CHURCH OR HALL ON VERSATILITY AND UNSHAKABLE STOCKS ECONOMY

Catholic Church of the Assumption, Southampton

These days a church has to be a great deal more than a church.

It has to be a social centre too.

Even a sports hall.

But who do you go to — a conventional builder, or Stocks?

Stocks will build you a church or hall cheaper than any conventional builder, and can complete the job in half the time.

And the modular Stocks system is infinitely variable.

Founded on economy, versatility and permanence your new church building will be individually designed — modern or traditional style.

What's more the exclusive Stocks package deal takes all the work and worry off your hands — right through from design to decoration.

Remember Stocks — the unshakable one.

Send now for colour brochure featuring actual case histories and details of how Stocks can bring you considerable savings on your new church building.

When it's a case of insurance, today's Priest needs to be something of a sleuth. By the process of deduction he'll examine the services, prices and covers offered by various insurance companies.

On investigation, the Church & General Insurance Company reveals a wide range of policies suitable for Dioceses, Religious Orders, Congregations, Schools, Colleges, Charities and similar bodies.

Further investigation will reveal that the Company has a strong tradition of personal service to its policyholders, perfected by over seventy years experience, which includes a full range of insurances for the individual. All this done, today's Priest reaches a quod erat demonstrandum.

Frank J. Burns, K.S.G.
Died, 21st August, 1979.
R.I.P.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Within the space of nine months, God called to himself two men to whom the Church in Scotland owes an incalculable debt, and without whom it is unlikely that the present publication and its sister work of reference, The Western Catholic Calendar, would still be in existence: Mgr. David McRoberts and Frank Burns, K.S.G.

A full obituary of Mgr. McRoberts, contributed by a lay friend of many years standing, will be found in its due place.

Mr. Burns, senior partner of the firm of John S. Burns & Sons who have published the Directory since 1937 and the Calendar since 1948, died on 21st August, 1979. From the death of his brother Jack in 1948 until his own family were old enough to share it, he had to shoulder the whole burden of running the printing and publishing firm which is justly renowned beyond the borders of Scotland especially for its output of Catholic works. Although never, so far as we know, accorded the official title of "Printers and Publishers to the Catholic Church in Scotland", such is virtually the position the firm holds. It was in recognition of this that, in 1973, the Bishops of Scotland successfully petitioned Pope Paul VI to create Mr. Burns a Knight of the Order of St. Gregory the Great.

Combined with the importance accorded by the firm to its work for the Catholic Church, inspired by Mr. Burns, there has been continued a technical excellence and a maintenance of standards not often found today, equally inspired by him. When we were discussing with the late Mgr. McRoberts our taking over of this editorship from him, he said, "One thing, you'll always get the best and most accurate of work from the Burnses—they're very nearly miraculous." In recording even this much, we have written more than would have pleased a man who shunned the limelight and who sought only to follow the Will of God for him. We offer Mrs. Burns and his children and grand-children our prayerful condolences.

Mgr. David McRoberts and Frank Burns were partners and friends for many years. It is fitting that this issue of a work which, in its present form, is one of the major fruits of that partnership should be dedicated to their joint memory, with respect, with affection and with gratitude. May they both rest in peace.

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND

THE HIERARCHY OF SCOTLAND

I

FROM THE EXTINCTION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1603 TILL ITS RESTORATION IN 1878

The ancient hierarchy ended with the death of James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, at Paris on 24th April, 1603, aged 86.

Rome showed little interest in Scottish affairs in the years following the reformation. From 1598 to 1621 Scottish Catholics were nominally subject to the English archpriests but there is no evidence that they concerned themselves with their Scottish subjects. The appointment of the first English vicar apostolic, William Bishop (1623-1624), was of a different order since his jurisdiction was episcopal and included Scotland. In a petition to Gregory XV, the few Scottish secular priests still on the Continent appealed to the papal bull, Cum universi, dated 13th March 1592, which declared the Scottish Church subject only to the Roman see; and the point was conceded. Nevertheless, the brief in 1625 appointing the second English vicar apostolic, Richard Smith, again included Scotland but on this occasion the issue of jurisdiction does not appear to have been raised. Smith's stay in England, in the event, was short and he had left by 1631. The work of the Irish Franciscan mission in the Highlands and Islands was the main burden of the missionary effort in Scotland during these years; and it was not until 1650 that a group of Scottish seculars met in Paris under the leadership of William Ballantine to consider what should be done.

Dates of events which occurred in Scotland before 1752 are given in Old Style while those which took place in European countries before 1752 are expressed in New Style. Consecrations qualified by the phrase "in secret" are those for which extraordinary measures were taken to conceal both the event and the news that it had taken place

Their names should be recorded: William Ballantine, James Crichton, William Leslie, Thomas Lumsden, John Smith and John Walker. They reached two important conclusions: to send William Leslie to Rome as agent for the Scottish secular clergy; and to petition Propaganda for the incorporation of the clergy into a missionary body, adequately subsidised by Rome. This was done by a decree of the Congregation de propaganda fide, dated 13th October, 1653; and it is to Ballantine that the credit for this first step is due.

PREFECTS APOSTOLIC

1. William Ballantine: born 1618, son of Thomas Ballantine (or Bannatine), minister of North Berwick, and Margaret Cockburn; brought up as a Presbyterian in Douglas where his father was incumbent from June 1621; educated University of Edinburgh (matriculated 1635, but left without graduating, presumably in 1636); received into Catholic Church, probably at Paris, date unknown; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 1641, and took the oath, 1st November; "factus ob infirmitatem citius sacerdos," 3rd December 1645; left the College, 15th March 1646; prefect of studies at Scots College, Paris; arrived in Scotland, "immediately before the Hellish Murder of the Best of Kings" [30th January 1649]; returned to Paris, 1650, and arranged meeting of six Scottish priests at which it was agreed that he and John Walker should petition Propaganda for the appointment of a prefect and missionaries with subsidy and that William Leslie should go to Rome as agent for Scottish secular priests; appointed prefect, 13th October 1653; arrested at Rye, Sussex, England, September 1656, imprisoned until July 1658, released on personal order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell, with a gift of £60 to take him to France; returned to Scotland, 18th May 1660; died at Elgin, 2nd September 1661, and is buried in the Huntly aisle, Elgin Cathedral, Moray; author of A preparation for death or, The practice of dying well (2nd edition, 1715).
2. Alexander Winchester: born at Garmouth, Moray, c. 1625 [parents' names unknown]; studied for four years at Rheims and for four further years under the Jesuits at Dijon; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 27th May 1651; ordained priest, 21st May 1656; left College, 1657 [at a meeting of Propaganda, 3rd September 1657, described as a member of Scots College in Rome who had just finished his studies]; appointed prefect 12th June 1662; school with 60 pupils established on Skye, c. 1663, by Ewen McAllister, schoolmaster, but subsequently driven out and re-established with 24 pupils in Glen Garry, 1665; absent in France, 1668-1672, during which period John Walker substituted as prefect but was not formally appointed as such by Propaganda; apostolic visitation of Scotland by Alexander Leslie, 1677-1680, with report submitted to Propaganda, January 1681; proposed by John Leyburne, vicar apostolic of England, to Propaganda as bishop for Scotland, 19th February 1686; Dean of Chapel Royal, Holyrood, 1687; escaped north to Gordon Castle at the Revolution in 1688; resigned July 1697; died at Banff, 14th January 1708, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Tynet, Moray. [There is little prospect of discovering Winchester's real name. The parish register for Urquhart in the presbytery of Elgin, which includes Garmouth, has nothing earlier than 1647. During his life he was known under many aliases, especially that of Dunbar; there is a Nicholas Dunbar, a merchant of Moray, included in the list of Catholics in Prefect Ballantine's report to Propaganda in 1660. Clapperton, however, says that his father's name was John Gray and implies that he was born in 1629. "Winchester" is a north-east of Scotland name, pronounced "Winster", and it is in the latter form that his name appears in the Scots College register and in the ordination registers of the Roman vicariate.]

In practice the prefecture apostolic covered only the Scots-speaking parts of the country. From 1612 to 1647 Gaelic-speaking Catholics in the Hebrides and Western Highlands of Scotland were ministered to by priests from the Irish Franciscan mission who were formally commissioned in this work by Urban VIII on 4th September 1623. At first they worked from the Irish Franciscan College of St. Anthony, Leuven, Belgium, but in 1626 they were granted as their headquarters the friary at Bonamargy, County Antrim, Ireland, traditional burial place of the MacDonnells of Antrim, descendants of the Lords of the Isles. The Irish spoken by these missionaries was understood by the people of the Highlands and Islands. The most effective period of their work was during the years 1624-1637. Although Patrick Hegarty worked from Bonamargy as prefect of this mission from 1631 to 1647, he did not visit Scotland during this period and the priest who spent the greatest number of years on the mission was Patrick Brady who laboured, chiefly in Sutherland, from 1619 to 1637. The last priest to leave was Cornelius Ward in the summer of 1637. Although the mission was formally re-established on 22nd January 1647 under Edmund McCann, no details of this new enterprise have come down to us and there is no evidence that any missionaries ever reached the Highlands and Islands.

Further attempts to carry on this mission were made by the Vincents of whom the best known is Francis White, "a truly Apostolic man," who was sent to Scotland by St. Vincent de Paul in 1654 and who worked in the West Highlands until his death on 28th January 1679. On 20th April 1665 and 20th September 1666 Propaganda in Congregation considered requests from the prefect, Alexander Winchester, that Irish-speaking priests should again be sent to the Highlands. It was eventually decided by Propaganda that a separate prefect apostolic for the Highlands and Islands should be provided and, on 17th September 1669, St. Oliver Plunkett, nominated only two months earlier to the archbishopric of Armagh, Ireland, was appointed additionally to this office and continued in it until his martyrdom in 1681.

THE VICARS APOSTOLIC OF SCOTLAND

The report on the state of the Mission requested in 1677 by Propaganda, prepared by Alexander Leslie and presented by him to the Congregation in January 1681, recommended, inter alia, the appointment of a general superior for Scotland, with authority over both seculars and regulars. At their meeting on 4th March 1681, Propaganda accepted most of Leslie's proposals but took no action on the nomination of a bishop. However, the disarray in which the Church in Scotland found itself after the "Glorious Revolution" of November-December 1688 and the subsequent triumph, by the settlement of 7th June 1690, of presbyterianism over episcopalianism as the form of Church government in Scotland confirmed the need among Catholics for a single episcopal superior towards whom all could look for leadership and support.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XII approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic for Scotland under a titular bishop (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 37v) and on 27th July 1694 Thomas Nicolson's name was proposed by Propaganda in Congregation for the appointment ["per tale Ministerio D. Tomaso Nicolson, sacerdote scozzese antico e benemerito Missionario il quale ha qualità, dottrina e costumi ecclesiastici com'è stato rappresentato più particolarmente all'Em. Prefetto "] (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 130v/131r). On 24th August 1694 Innocent XII approved the appointment of Thomas Nicolson as first vicar apostolic.

1. Thomas Nicolson: born at Birkenbog, Banffshire, c. 1645, son of Thomas Nicolson of Pitmedden, Aberdeenshire, and Elizabeth Abercromby of Birkenbog; brought up as an Episcopalian; educated University of Aberdeen (matriculated 1660); regent [i.e. professor], University of Glasgow, 1666-1681; after the Test Act passed by the Parliament of Scotland, 13th August 1681, he "demurred to take the Test appointed by act of Parliament", and was presumably deprived of his regency in the autumn of 1681, (by inference from an entry in Register of the Privy Council); received into Catholic Church, 1682; visited Scots College, Douai, 3rd July 1682, when he was described in College diary as being 36 years old and formerly professor of Greek, mathematics and philosophy in University of Glasgow; appointed to staff of episcopal seminary at Padua, Italy, and later decided to enter the priesthood; prefect of studies, October 1685 to August 1687; ordained at Padua, 9th March, 1686; returned to Scotland as missionary, December 1687, and stationed at Glasgow where he stayed in the town house of the Baillie family of Castlecary; name proposed by James VII as bishop, July 1688; arrested at the Revolution and imprisoned in Stirling Castle, November, 1688; exiled to France on bond of his brother, Lord Kemnay; chaplain to English Benedictine nuns at Dunkirk, 1689-1694; consecrated titular bishop of Peristachium and first vicar apostolic of Scotland by Jules de Mascaron, Cong. Orat., bishop of Agen, France, assisted by Henri de Barillon, bishop of Luçon, France, and Martin de Ratabon, bishop of Ieper, Belgium, in secret at Paris, 27th February 1695; left Paris for Scotland, 8th April 1695, but for lack of a passport was unable to cross to England and was forced to spend the rest of that year and most of the next in Holland and Germany where, at Würzburg, he received in August 1696 from John Ambrose Cook, O.S.B., abbot of Würzburg, and Thomas Placid Fleming, O.S.B., abbot of Ratisbon, the promise of complete submission to his authority of Benedictine monks while on the mission; arrived in England, November 1696, arrested, and subsequently released, May 1697; arrived in Edinburgh, July 1697, but took up residence at Preshome, Banffshire, which thus became administrative centre of Church in Scotland; divided Scotland into fixed districts to which missionaries were attached and prepared rules for their direction, April 1700, which were approved by Propaganda in 1706 and remained in force until 1780 [Statuta Missionis—see under George Hay ((6) below)]; received from William Aloysius Leslie, S.J., submission of Jesuit missionaries to his authority at Aberdeen, 7th February 1701; undertook extensive visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; ordained Peter Fraser priest, 11th March 1704, probably at Preshome, the first ordination in Scotland [? British Isles] since the reformation; “a very great man, both in learning and piety, under whom the Mission was always free from intestine embroils”; imprisoned at Fochabers after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715; died at Preshome, 12th October 1718, and is buried in St. Ninian’s churchyard, Tynet, Moray.

2. James Gordon: born at Glastirum, Enzie, Banffshire, 31st January 1665, son of Patrick Gordon of Glastirum [mother’s name unknown]; entered Scots College, Paris, 1679, sent first to Louvain but returned to Paris, 1683; B.A. (Paris, 1692); ordained at Paris [date unknown]; missionary in the Enzie, 1692-1702; assistant to Scots agent in Rome, 1702-1706; English agent at Rome, 1703-1706; consecrated titular bishop of Nicopolis and coadjutor vicar apostolic of Scotland by Marc’Antonio Barbarigo, cardinal archbishop of Montefiascone, assisted by Giuseppe Cianti, bishop of Sutri, and Onofrio Elisei, bishop of Bagnoregio, in secret at Montefiascone, Italy, 11th April, 1706; arrived in Scotland, July 1706; a great apostolic bishop who during the whole of his long episcopate made heroic visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; founded with seven boys [Hugh MacDonald (see (10) below) being one of them] seminary at Loch Morar, Inverness-shire, 1714; in hiding with rest of clergy during persecutions after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715; re-opened Loch Morar seminary and transferred it to Scaln, Banffshire, 1716; succeeded as vicar apostolic, 12th October 1718; translated on division of vicariate to Lowland District, 23rd July 1727.
3. John Wallace: born at Arbroath, baptised 8th April 1654 [Arbroath Parochial Register in New Register House, Edinburgh], son of Patrick Wallace, merchant [mother's name unknown]; [the Wallace family played a leading part in the affairs of Arbroath in the 17th and 18th centuries, and many with the name of Patrick Wallace were provost; they were, in religion, Episcopalian; politically, after 1688, Jacobites; in trade, tobacco and linen merchants with a taste for smuggling]; brought up as an Episcopalian and licensed to preach and baptise in Episcopalian ministry; tutor to children of Earl of Perth, 1681 "in Lent"; left Scotland for France, 1686, and probably received into Catholic Church there; after Revolution with Jacobite court at St. Germain-en-Laye; private almoner to James VII; retired to live at Scots College, Paris; was persuaded by Bishop James Gordon in July 1706 to return to Scotland and did so in October 1706; ordained at Preshome, 3rd April 1708; missionary at Arbroath; in February 1709 the Presbytery of Arbroath recorded that "popery was prevailing in Arbroath, by the industry of Mr. John Wallace, and by reason of his interest in the place and in the country about" and he was therefore summoned to the justiciary court at Perth, 1709, for apostasy and for trafficking and perverting but, for want of evidence, the diet was deserted; from 1709 lived mainly in Edinburgh where he was chaplain to Duchess of Gordon; consecrated titular bishop of Cyrrhus and coadjutor vicar apostolic by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic of Scotland, assisted by Alexander Drummond, priest, and James Carnegie, priest, in secret at Edinburgh, 21st September 1720; arrested Edinburgh, 1722, and outlawed; died at Edinburgh, 30th June 1733 [place of burial unknown].

II: 1727-1827

On 23rd July 1727 Scotland was divided into two vicariates, the Lowland and Highland Districts. Alexander John Grant was nominated titular bishop of Sura and vicar apostolic, Highland District, 6th August 1727. He was born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, c. 1693, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid, and elder brother of James Grant (see (5) below); entered Scots College, Rome, 2nd April 1711, aged 17; ordained priest [sub-deacon, 18th December 1717, but dates of diaconate and priesthood not traced]; left the College, 5th June 1719; at Scots College, Paris, July 1719 to July 1721; arrived in Scotland, August 1721; and was superior at Scalau, 1721-1726. In anticipation of his appointment he went to Paris, November 1726, and to Rome, March 1727. Although he was duly elected by Propaganda on 17th December, 1726, there was, for a number of reasons, a delay of some seven months before this was approved by Benedict XIII on 6th August 1727. In the meantime, Grant left Rome in April 1727 for Loreto and eventually reached Genoa in August where he became ill. He was last heard from in a letter dated 28th December 1727, seriously ill and living in great poverty in Genoa. It is presumed that he died there since no further trace of him has been discovered.

A successor was not appointed until 20th January 1731 when Hugh MacDonald was provided to the Highland District. The brief dated 12th February 1731 issued by Clement XII approving this nomination contained a clause empowering Bishops Gordon and MacDonald to define the limits of their respective Districts. This was done at a bishops' meeting in Edinburgh in October 1731 following Bishop MacDonald's consecration and was formally ratified by Propaganda in Congregation on 7th January 1732. The division was made on a basic recognition of the linguistic and cultural differences which separated the two peoples of Scotland at that time. In general terms, the two Districts were divided along a line which may be thought of as running from Dumbarton to Nairn, with the Scots-speaking area to the south and east comprising the Lowland District and the Gaelic-speaking area to the north and west in the Highland District, but with a number of localities where each overlapped the other.

A map showing the division in these terms appears in The Innes Review, xvii (1966), 130.

Lowland District

James Gordon, translated 23rd July 1727 but translation not effective until 18th October 1731; died at Thornhill, Perthshire, 18th February 1746, and is buried at Innerpeffrey, Perthshire.

4. Alexander Smith: born at Fochabers, Moray, "about Peter's Day", 1684, son of [Robert?] Smith, surgeon, and Catherine Wilson; entered Scots College, Paris, 1698; M.A. (Paris), 1703; returned from Paris, 1709, as deacon; ordained at Preshome, 19th April 1712; seriously ill after ordination, living in Aberdeen, but movements uncertain until return to Paris; procurator, Scots College, Paris, 1718-1730; returned to Scotland, July 1730; missionary in Angus, but illness [scrofula] continued and he was allowed to return to Paris, May 1733 - August 1735; consecrated titular bishop of Misinopolis by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District, and Peter Grant, priest, at Edinburgh, 2nd November 1735; succeeded, 18th February 1746; in exile in England, 1750-1751; published first Scottish Catholic catechism, 1757, reprinted 1760; died at Edinburgh, 21st August 1767 [place of burial unknown].
5. James Grant: born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, July 1706, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid; at Scaln for two years before entering Scots College, Rome, 16th January 1726; ordained at Rome, 4th April 1733; at Sulpician seminary of St. Nicolas du Chardonnet, Paris, 1734-1735; stationed at Lochaber, 1735-1736; missionary on Barra and South Uist, 1736-1746; imprisoned in common jail at Inverness, 1746-1747; missionary at Rathven, 1748-1755; consecrated titular bishop of Sinitis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, by Alexander Smith, titular bishop of Misinopolis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District [name of second co-consecrator unknown] in secret at Edinburgh, 13th November 1755; succeeded, 21st August 1767; died at Aberdeen, 3rd December 1778, and is buried in the Snow churchyard, Old Aberdeen.

- 6 George Hay: born at Edinburgh, 24th August 1729, son of James Hay, writer, and Mary Morrison; brought up as an Episcopalian; apprenticed to George Lauder, surgeon, 1745; impressed with other Edinburgh doctors and medical students to treat wounded after battle of Prestonpans, 21st September 1745, and thereafter followed the Jacobite army to England and on the retreat to Scotland; according to tradition, subsequently imprisoned at Edinburgh and London before being released and returning to Edinburgh in June 1747, but his name is not included by Seton and Arnot in The Prisoners of the '45 (Scottish History Society, 1928-1929, 3 vols.); received into Catholic Church, 21st December 1748; owed vocation to priesthood to Bishop Richard Challoner whom he met in 1750 in London; entered Scots College, Rome, 10th September 1751; ordained at Rome, 2nd April 1758; missionary at Preshome, 1759-1767; procurator of the vicariate, 1767-1779 and stationed at Edinburgh; consecrated titular bishop of Daulia and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, by James Grant, titular bishop of Sinitis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District, assisted by Hugh MacDonald, vicar apostolic, Highland District, and John MacDonald, coadjutor vicar apostolic, Highland District, in secret at Scalán, 21st May 1769; succeeded, 3rd December 1778; devotional writer, controversialist and administrator of great ability; during period of great stress for the Church in Scotland moved its centre away from Highlands to Aberdeen and Edinburgh; revised in conjunction with Bishops MacDonald and Geddes the Statuta Missionis, dated April 1700, of Bishop Nicolson and secured approval and publication of revised text by Propaganda: Instruktionen ad munera Apostolica rite obeunda perutiles missionibus S... [Scotiae] accommodatae [Rome 1782]; founded seminary at Aquhorties, Aberdeenshire, to which students transferred from Scalán, 24th July 1799; resigned 24th August 1805; died at Aquhorties, 15th October 1811, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Fetternear, Aberdeenshire, but the exact site of his grave is unknown and no memorial marks the last resting place of the greatest of the Scottish vicars apostolic; collected edition of writings published as Works... a new edition edited under the supervision of Bishop Strain (7 vols., 1871-1873, 2nd edition, 5 vols., 1872); centenary reprintings of The sincere Christian (1911) and Bishop Hay on the priesthood (1911).
7. John Geddes: born at Mains of Corridoun, Enzie, Banffshire, 29th August 1735, son of John Geddes and Marjory Burgess; entered Scots College, Rome, 6th February 1750; ordained at Rome, 18th March 1759; missionary at Shenval, 1759-1762; superior, Scalán, 1762-1767; missionary at Preshome, 1767-1770; rector, Scots College, Madrid, 1770, which he transferred to Valladolid, 1771, and where he remained until 1780; consecrated titular bishop of Morocco and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, by Francisco Lorenzana, archbishop of Toledo [names of co-consecrators unknown], at Madrid, 30th November 1780; in charge of the mission at Edinburgh, 1781-1793, where he had outstandingly successful apostolate among non-Catholics; recipient from the poet, Robert Burns, of the copy of the first Edinburgh edition (1787) of his poems with additional poems in manuscript, known as the "Geddes Burns," now in the Huntington Library, San Marino, California, U.S.A.; wrote Brief historical account of the seminary of Scalán (1777—published Innes Review, xiv (1963) 93-105), Life of St. Margaret (1794), Account of the Scotch Mission in 1745-6-7 (1794—published in this Directory, 1838), contributed to 3rd edition of Encyclopaedia Britannica (1788-1797), Watch and Pray (1797), and a catalogue in MSS. of the secular missionaries; retired to Aberdeen, 26th October 1793, through ill-health; died at Aberdeen, 11th February 1799, and is buried in the Snow churchyard, Old Aberdeen.

8. Alexander Cameron: born Braemar, Aberdeenshire, 28th July 1747, son of James Cameron and Marjory Mackintosh; at Scalán, 1760-1764, before entering Scots College, Rome, 22nd December 1764; "optimae capacitatis et ingenii; prudentia, morum probitate superioribus charus, dignus propterea qui a sacra Congregne prae oculis haberetur"; ordained at Rome, 2nd February 1772; missionary in Strath Avon, 1772-1780; rector, Scots College, Valladolid, 1780-1798; consecrated titular bishop of Maximianopolis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, by Antonio de Távira, bishop of Salamanca [names of co-consecrators unknown], at Madrid, 28th October 1798; arrived in Scotland, 22nd August 1802; succeeded, 24th August 1805; resigned, 20th August 1825; died at Edinburgh, 7th February 1828, and is buried in St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.
9. Alexander Paterson: born at Pathhead, Enzie, Banffshire, March 1766 [names of parents unknown]; at Scalán, 29th April 1780, and left for Scots College, Douai, 8th October 1780 [date of entry unknown]; ordained at Douai, date unknown [? 1791]; prefect of studies at Douai until closure of College in March 1793; missionary at Tombae, Glenlivet, 1793-1812, Paisley, 1812-1816; consecrated titular bishop of Cybistra and coadjutor vicar apostolic, Lowland District, by Alexander Cameron, titular bishop of Maximianopolis and vicar apostolic, Lowland District [names of co-consecrators unknown], at Paisley, 15th August 1816; succeeded 20th August 1825; translated on division of vicariates to Eastern District, 13th February 1827.

Highland District

10. Hugh MacDonald: born Morar, Inverness-shire, 2nd February 1699, son of Alexander MacDonald of Morar by his second wife, Mary MacDonald of Kinlochmoidart, and uncle of John MacDonald (11 below); one of the first students at Loch Morar, 1714, and at Scalán, 1716; one of first two priests ordained at Scalán, 18th September 1725; missionary at Morar, 1725-1730; at Scots College, Paris, July 1730 - September 1731, in preparation for episcopal appointment; consecrated titular bishop of Diana

FROM THE RESTORATION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1878 TO THE PRESENT DAY

The Apostolic Letter "Ex Supremo Apostolatus Apice" of Leo XIII, 4th March 1878, divided Scotland into the Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh (with four Suffragan Sees) and the Archdiocese of Glasgow, which was directly subject to the Holy See. By the Apostolic Constitution "Maxime Interest" of Pius XII, 25th May 1947, and the Apostolic Constitution "Dominici Gregis" of the same date, the Archdiocese of Glasgow was erected into a Province and divided into the Metropolitan See of Glasgow with the Suffragan Sees of Motherwell and Paisley.

A pamphlet entitled Diocesan Map of Scotland, showing maps of each of the dioceses of Scotland, was published by The Mercat Cross in 1953.

THE PROVINCE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

The Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh consists of the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh and the four Suffragan Sees of Aberdeen, Argyll and the Isles, Dunkeld, and Galloway.

ARCHDIOCESE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH *

Comprising the Metropolitan Cathedral City of Edinburgh; the entire Lothian and Borders Regions; in Fife Region, the districts of Dunfermline (except the parish of High Valleyfield), Kirkcaldy, and North-East Fife south of the River Eden; in Central Region, Falkirk District and those parts of Stirling District situated in the geographical county of Stirlingshire; and, in Strathclyde Region, the Banton, Kilsyth and Queenzieburn areas of Cumbernauld District, and the Lennoxton, Milton of Campsie and Torrance areas of Strathkelvin District.

The bishops associated with Kinrimumb, St. Andrews, had assumed ecclesiastical primacy in Scotland from Dunkeld by the beginning of the tenth century. The last of the Celtic bishops died in 1093; the line of the medieval bishops began in 1109 but the Church and the bishopric were not securely established until 1144. The independence of the Scottish Church from the metropolitan claims of the archbishops of York was established by Celestine III with the Bull Cum universi, 13th March 1192. St. Andrews was erected a Metropolitan See by Sixtus IV, 14th August 1472. The See was vacant from the execution at Stirling on 6th April 1571 of John Hamilton (1547-1571) until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

Comprising the Cathedral City of Oban; The Western Isles; in Strathclyde Region, the district of Argyll together with the Isle of Arran from Cunninghame District; in the Highland Region, the district of Skye and Lochalsh (except the mainland portion), and the areas of the districts of Lochaber, Inverness, and Badenoch and Strathspey lying south of a straight line drawn from the junction of the districts of Moray, Kincardine and Deeside, and Badenoch and Strathspey to the northern extremity of Loch Loyne.

Argyll was founded 1183x1189 by a division of the diocese of Dunkeld. It was located at Lismore c. 1225. It became a suffragan of St. Andrews in 1472 and of Glasgow in 1492. In 1553 James Hamilton was appointed bishop but he conformed to the reformed Church after 1560 and the See was vacant until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

The See of The Isles was originally conjoined with Man (or Sodor). The medieval bishops from x1079 recognised the metropolitan authority of York until 1153 when Rome made them subject to Trondheim, Norway, but this was only nominal after 1349. Man and The Isles were separated from 1387. The Isles became a suffragan of St. Andrews in 1472. It was vacant from the translation of Alexander Gordon (1553-1558) until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

Comprising the Cathedral City of Ayr; the entire Dumfries and Galloway Region; and, in Strathclyde Region, the districts of Cunninghamham (except the Isle of Arran), Kilmarnock and Loudoun, Kyle and Carrick, and Cumnock and Doon Valley.

The See of Whithorn is associated from the late fourth century with St. Ninian but it is probable that a Christian community existed there before his arrival. There was a continuous succession of bishops in the eighth century. The See was revived c. 1128 and recognised the metropolitan authority of York until 1355. It became a suffragan of St. Andrews in 1472 and of Glasgow in 1492. The See was, in effect, vacant from the death of Andrew Durie (1541-1558) since his successor, Alexander Gordon conformed at the reformation in 1560, and it remained vacant until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

THE PROVINCE OF GLASGOW

The Province of Glasgow was erected in 1947 by the Apostolic Letters Dominici Gregis and consists of the Archdiocese of Glasgow and the two Suffragan Sees of Motherwell and Paisley.

ARCHDIOCESE OF GLASGOW

Comprising the Metropolitan Cathedral City of Glasgow; in Strathclyde Region: the City of Glasgow District (except Garthamlock, Craigend, parts of Easterhouse; Baillieston, Cambuslang, Rutherglen and Burnside); Cumbernauld District (except Banton, Kilsyth and Queenzieburn); the Baldernock, Bishopbriggs and Kirkintilloch areas of Strathkelvin District; Bearsden and Milngavie, Clydebank, and Dumbarton Districts; and the Thornliebank area of Eastwood District.

The episcopal church associated with St. Kentigern in the sixth century was in the Kingdom of Strathclyde but the location of this church, at Glasgow or at Govan or at some third site, is uncertain. The See of Glasgow was revived by Earl David (David I) c.1114x 1118. It was designated by Pope Alexander III "the special daughter of the Roman See", 30th April 1175, and confirmed in this honour, 30th July 1176. It became a suffragan of St. Andrews in 1472 but was itself erected a metropolitan See by Innocent VIII, 9th January 1492. It was vacant from the death in Paris on 24th April 1603 of James Beaton (1551-1603) until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

Father Magee is now an assistant at St. Thomas', Riddrie.

OBITUARIES — 1979

The Right Rev. Mgr. David Canon McRoberts,
Ph.L., S.T.L., D.Litt., F.S.A., F.S.A.Scot.
Keeper of the Scottish Catholic Archives —
25th November, 1978

Mgr. David McRoberts, editor of this Directory from 1950 to 1974, died in Edinburgh on 25th November, 1978, aged sixty-six. He was a medieval historian of distinction and one of the most influential Catholic clerics in Scotland since Bishop John Geddes withdrew from active work in Edinburgh in 1793.

David was born at Overtoun, Wishaw, on 13th June, 1912, the youngest of a family of five. Eight weeks after his birth, his father died, aged only thirty-eight, and his mother (ob. 1942) was left to bring up her young family in a world which knew little of the financial support which would be available in such circumstances today. Wishaw itself was at a moment of change in its fortunes: it was still an independent police burgh, created in the 1850s in the wake of the industrial revolution and dependent for its livelihood on its resources of men and iron and coal. With a population of some 25,000, a reasonable proportion of them Catholic, it was at the height of its independence and prosperity in the years of the First World War; but it was soon to lose both, the first in its amalgamation in 1920 with the neighbouring burgh of Motherwell and the second in the widespread economic depression and its resultant unemployment which characterised the two decades which separated the First and Second World Wars.

"In the 1920s, the Catholic congregation in Wishaw was, like the town itself, a small, compact, friendly and contented community."

So one of David's autobiographical fragments lovingly describes the world in which he was brought up. We can also gather from it an impression of the influences which, at an early stage, were to help form him. The first two parish priests he knew at St. Ignatius' were, by coincidence, Belgian, Father Joseph van Hecke and Mgr. Octavius Claeys, both from the same province of Flanders, both deeply spiritual men formed in the great cultural traditions of northern European Catholicism. Of the assistant priests, Father Thomas Murray came to Wishaw in 1921 and brought with him the beginnings of the liturgical revival, fostered in Scotland by Claeys and led by Father Alexander Hamilton, with his love of church music and his demands for excellence in its performance; while his successor, Father Thomas O'Kane, in quite a different field, by his writings in the parish magazine and by the publication of A Catholic Catechism of Social Questions—which sold 100,000 copies in its English edition alone, as well as being translated into several foreign languages—and of A Catholic Looks at Life—six reprints in as many years—showed that it was possible to carry the burden both of his duties as a curate in a demanding parish and to find time to write and to be published. But the greatest influence was Claeys who, paradoxically, spent less than a year in Wishaw before his death; but it was an influence which David was to remember all his life.

David's education followed the pattern normal for a clerical student of his time. In January, 1918, he went to St. Ignatius' parish school and then, in August, 1923, to Our Lady's High School, Motherwell; on 11th August, 1927, he was one of the forty-three boys who went that year to Blairs to join the many boys from Wishaw already there and four years later, on 1st October, 1931, he entered the Scots College, Rome, where he was a competent but not exceptional student; he was ordained priest on 18th December, 1937, in St. John Lateran by Archbishop Luigi Traglia, titular Archbishop of Caesarea in Palestine and Vice-Gerent of Rome, together with four other students of the Scots College (James K. Birnie (+ 1977), Charles Collins, William Duddy, and Robert J. Connolly (laicised 1955)) and seven students from the English College, including Eric Grasar, now Bishop of Shrewsbury, and Sydney Lescher, a familiar figure in his wheelchair to several generations of Scots servicemen who benefited from his apostolate over so many years in retreat centres in Germany.

Left like that, we have disposed in a single paragraph of the twenty most formative years of a man's life. But something should be said, even if it is only to indicate his debt to the men who trained him at Blairs and in Rome in the years when the prevailing mood of the Church was one of exultant optimism and the knowledge that all things were possible. There was, too, the growth of his own artistic development, from the boy devising stunning sets for Gilbert and Sullivan productions at Blairs to the young man delighting in every aspect of historical Rome, left free to do so because his life-long passion for walking, which he indulged in at Blairs and especially in Rome and the Campagna, excused him from all forms of sport for which he had a complete distaste; the interests stimulated by his reorganisation, with the help of a few of his friends, of the college library; and, quite significant in the longer term, the curiosity aroused in him by the rector, Mgr. William Clapperton, and the unbroken continuity which he and his family represented with the pre-Reformation Church, which was matched with his friendship with the convert student, J. K. Robertson, also like Clapperton from the north-east.

David returned to Scotland in July, 1938, with a final report from Clapperton to Archbishop Mackintosh of Glasgow recommending that he should be sent back to the Vatican for further studies in history. But the Munich crisis was only two months away and, given the place and the time, a course of higher study in history was unlikely to be regarded with any great favour; so, instead of returning to Rome, David went as assistant to St. Peter's, Partick, with part-time duties in the diocesan office.

His five years at Partick were the only ones he spent on pastoral work. His talents were not those which were best suited to such work while the period itself was untypical of parish work for within twelve months Britain was at war. "I remember saying Mass in Bridge Street church on Sunday morning, 3rd September, 1939; it was a glorious autumn morning, but everyone was very silent and subdued; we had just heard the prime minister saying we were at war, and we all knew in our hearts that life would never be quite the same again." The school children had been evacuated to Dunoon but their reception had been less than whole-hearted and most of them were back in Partick within the month. Large numbers of young men in the parish joined the services, especially the merchant navy; part of the parish lay in the docks and was badly affected by the blitz of 1941; the parish became an international crossroads, with Americans and Canadians and their chaplains, Free French and a variety of other European nationalities turning up from time to time, so that Latin tended to become the language of the presbytery breakfast table; above all, there were the Poles singing the 11 o'clock Mass in Bridge Street: "... the men sang. Perhaps that was the turning point in the war for many of us. We had no idea what the hymns meant, but that manly singing had a trust in God and a confidence in final victory that surpassed even the speeches of Churchill."

Partick was not a particularly happy house at that time. The material conditions under which the assistant priests lived were spartan; in later years, Canon George Stuart told me that the first thing he had to do when he went to Partick in 1948, as parish priest, was to buy new beds for the curates. The parish priest, Mgr. James Mullin—"the ubiquitous doctor", as he was known in the diocese—an able administrator in his time, and the local favourite to succeed to the bankrupt diocese of Glasgow during the long vacancy of 1920-22, was now old and difficult. It was therefore with some relief that, on the retirement of Dr. W. E. Brown, David received in 1943 his appointment to teach Church history and scripture at the diocesan seminary where he was to remain for the next twenty years.

But Bearsden itself was not without its troubles. The rector, Mgr. Henry Forbes, was also old and nearing his end. During his long period of office, the college buildings had been neglected and were now badly in need of repair. War-time food rationing had brought its own problems, especially for students who were susceptible to the diseases, such as tuberculosis, which were then endemic on Clydeside. The see became vacant at the end of 1943 and, in the unusual circumstances of the time, there was no authority with the will to resolve immediately the problems of the college. The subsequent tribulations of the seminary in its temporary home at Mill Hill in London and its later moves, after the fire at Bearsden in 1946, to Darleith and Kilmahew were to provide their own distractions in the years ahead; but on the whole, David was now, for the first time, free to decide in which directions he should employ his energies and talents.

The Catholic community in Scotland was a very lively one at that time. Those who have read the many obituaries David contributed to the Directory will have noticed the emphasis he continually sought to place on the intellectual, cultural and political developments which multiplied in Catholic Scotland in the thirty years following the passing of the Education (Scotland) Act of 1918; and those who have read his correspondence know how dismissive he could be of the currently received opinions of the 1970s: "One of the nastiest features of the situation that presently prevails is that the new generation of priests and laymen seem to be given the impression that absolutely nothing was ever done [until after Vatican II]. The whole thing smacks of the communist method of re-writing history."

In the 1940s, David was giving some thought to a radical revision of the extra-liturgical services commonly held on Sunday and week-day evenings. He found them hackneyed and sterile and thought they provided a ready opportunity for imaginative experiment. But his attempts to break fresh ground were not too successful, the main opposition coming from the congregation rather than the clergy, as Father John D. Daniel also found in those years in similar experiments he was conducting at Strathaven. Outside the Catholic community, he mixed with the clergy of other Churches in the Glasgow Ecclesiological Society; and he was also an early member of the Saltire Society to whose Glasgow branch he gave a lecture in 1942 which resulted in the proceedings becoming rather heated as the evening wore on but which ended with a somewhat battered David still in command of his audience and with a letter from the society to the archbishop describing it as the best meeting so far held by the Glasgow branch.

But his principal work was to be done in the field of writing. He was prepared on occasion to lecture to learned societies or to deliver special sermons but he recognised that public speaking was not among his talents; he could control what appeared on the printed page and thus convey exactly what he intended to say. All invitations in later years to appear on television or radio were firmly rejected. "You have nothing to worry about", one radio producer said to him, "I will be in charge of the editing." "That is what worries me", replied Davd.

Merely to catalogue the editorships he occupied, is to give an indication of part of his work in this field. From 1945-57, he was editor of St. Peter's College Magazine; from 1948-74 of The Western Catholic Calendar; from 1950-74 of The Catholic Directory for Scotland; from 1951 until his death of The Innes Review. He also edited all five issues of the St. Andrew Annual from 1961-65; and from 1971-74 the first three issues of The Catholic Church in Scotland. The College Magazine ceased publication in 1968 without any notice to its subscribers, an act of discourtesy which annoyed David but perhaps did not altogether surprise him: "I well remember the frustrating years I spent trying to coax the members of the staff at Cardross to write articles for the College Magazine . . ."

The period covered by his editorship of The Western Catholic Calendar and of the Directory was one of great change in the Church in Scotland. The division into three dioceses of the former Archdiocese of Glasgow, the great increase in the number of parishes as the old were broken up and new ones were founded on housing estates, the volume of new church building and the replacement of older churches—all had to be recorded and not always with that co-operation from the clergy which one would have expected. He restored the clerical obituaries which had been a casualty of the war-time shortage of paper; those which he himself wrote were usually marked by an attempt to place the man in the context of his time. He tried to make the statistical information more complete, although it was not in his power to make it more accurate, and he did introduce the practice of publishing parochial population estimates which, on the whole, are not as unreliable as most people seem to think and are certainly better than anything of a similar nature currently available elsewhere. But his principal success was that, in a period of rising costs and mounting inflation, with the active co-operation of his publisher, Frank Burns (+ 1979), he eliminated wasteful duplication of costs through an editorial arrangement between the Directory and the more commercially successful Calendar. By the ruthless pruning of the general and useless encyclopaedic information which all annual publications seem to attract, he was able to keep the size of the Directory under control with the result that, unlike its English and Irish contemporaries, he ensured its continuous publication in a very difficult time. Many editorial changes which he introduced are possibly not noticed by the general reader—but one need only compare his first issue of the Directory in 1950 with this edition to see the changes which both he and the present editor have made over the past thirty years.

David was interested in every aspect of Scottish history. What was especially remarkable was his extraordinary range of detailed knowledge of so many periods and subjects; this could, in a lesser man, have turned to arrogance but in David his knowledge was carried lightly and displayed with a freshness and enthusiasm which encouraged rather than intimidated. To wish genuinely to know was enough to attract his interest with the inevitable result that he brought upon himself an intolerable burden of enquiries, both from home and overseas. It is easy to be critical and to judge that he should have husbanded his energies by saying "No" more frequently; but that would be to ignore the nature of the man who was, too often for his own good, intellectually attracted by the speculative possibilities opened up by even quite minor enquiries.

It is, of course, for his work on the history and ecclesiology of the Church in Scotland in the Middle Ages that his serious claim as a historian in his own right rests. A memoir dealing with his work in this field, together with his studies in heraldry, archives, and the writing of his hymns, has already appeared in The Innes Review (vol. xxx (1979), pp. 3-15), with a bibliography. It may be sufficient to note here that his published work on the Middle Ages lies principally in three fields: on the liturgical manuscripts of the medieval Church; on the medieval cathedrals of Scotland, especially those of Dunblane, St. Andrews and Glasgow; and in a group of more general articles reflecting on aspects of life in late medieval Scotland and the world beyond. In 1970, when he was presented for an honorary doctorate in the University of Glasgow, he was described as "a leader who, by his own contributions and by his guidance of others, has promoted much of the most recent notable research [in Scottish medieval history]".

Not all of his work was of equal value: there is a clear distinction to be made between the weight to be given to his pre-Reformation studies and to the articles which he published on aspects of the post-Reformation Church and which seemed to his critics to reflect, to the detriment of the three other main strands in the modern Scottish Catholic Church, his sympathy with the Banffshire tradition. But Banffshire represented continuity between the medieval Church and the Church of today and to a medieval historian that was not without its appeal; the tradition was reasonably well documented and that would have attracted any historian; and there was the bond of the warm and hospitable friendships he made over the years in the Aberdeen Diocese. Nor was the romantic element missing: in 1959, when he was staying with Father Sandy MacWilliam at St. Peter's, Aberdeen, he noted in his diary: "Bed about midnight in attic where Bishop Scott and others stayed as students from Douai [in 1793]." There were two valuable results from this: the publication in St. Peter's College Magazine in 1949 of the first of Father MacWilliam's notable series of articles on the native post-Reformation seminaries in Scotland and the founding of the Scalán Association to perpetuate the memory of the work which had been done in these seminaries in the bad times.

During the war, from 1941 onwards, he spent his summer holidays working in the monument room at Blairs and after 1946, when his fellow-student, Father J. K. Robertson, was appointed parish priest at Preshome, he was a frequent annual visitor. All his holidays were carefully planned around his work. The year the seminary had spent in London had given him a familiarity with its libraries and museums and he spent several working holidays there. In 1949, he explored English cathedrals; but it would be tedious to catalogue the cities and places he visited—the point is made only to emphasise the thoroughness with which he did the fieldwork which he was to turn to such advantage when he was at the height of his powers in the 1960s and 1970s. Nevertheless, mention should be made of a seven-week expedition in 1958 by train, bus and boat across Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and back home through France to visit churches, museums and libraries. In Brussels he not only visited Notre Dame de Bon Succès—a visit which resulted in the Christmas Card of Our Lady of Aberdeen published by Glasgow Art Gallery in 1971—but, more importantly, he had a long meeting with Père Paul Grosjean, S.J. (of the Boilandists).

History to David was not merely a matter of documents; he had a keen eye for the importance of objects as historical evidence, of which we have excellent examples in his identification of the Fetternear Banner—the oldest example of native embroidery known in Scotland; his delight in the heraldic ceiling of St. Machar's Cathedral, Aberdeen—almost at the year 1519 contemporaneous with the Fetternear Banner; and his bringing together of the Holyrood House altar plate of 1686, a project which gave him great pleasure. It was presumably because of his interest in this field that the Secretary of State for Scotland appointed him to the Board of Trustees of the National Museum of Antiquities in 1965. Not that documents were forgotten: one of his most worthwhile schemes was to organise the photocopying of all pre-1855 Catholic baptismal and marriage registers for deposit in the Scottish Record Office, work on which began in 1969 and is expected to be completed in 1980. For the first time, all Scottish Catholic registers which have survived will be available for consultation in one place, the Historical Search Room of the Record Office in Edinburgh.

In 1966, David was elected a member of the Council of the Scottish History Society and three years later, by the choice of its members, chairman of the Council. It was a unique tribute from his fellow-historians but one which he was reluctant to accept since he felt that a Catholic priest as chairman might not be acceptable to the members of the Society as a whole. At his request, therefore, soundings were taken and it emerged, as the unanimous view, that he should be appointed. This post in 1969, together with the honorary doctorate in 1970 of the University of Glasgow, confirmed the recognition and approval of his own generation of professional historians upon his work.

Although his work lay almost wholly in a predominantly non-Catholic academic world, he never lost contact with the Catholic community in which he had been brought up. Not only did he become a universal reference point for all sorts and conditions of enquiries but his considerable artistic skills were also available to those who sought them. One may think only of his design of the Glasgow crozier (1953); the identification and renovation of the fifteenth-century St. Mahew's chapel at Kirkton (1955)—described by the late Cardinal Heenan of Westminster as the most beautiful chapel he had ever seen; his advice to the rector, Mgr. Philip Flanagan, on the scheme of ornamentation for the new Scots College, Rome, together with his preliminary drawings for the sequence of twenty stained glass windows in the college depicting important events in the history of the Church in Scotland (1964); the oval altar and the baptismal font at St. Andrew's, Greenock (1967), and the scheme of decoration he proposed for that church, splendid in its unfolding of the story of our redemption, ending gloriously in a fifty-foot high mural of Christ Risen, of which, sadly, it has been possible only to complete the Resurrection (by Walter Pritchard, 1972). David's own idea of the Resurrection, as of everything he inspired, was simplicity: he wanted only one figure, Christ resplendent and triumphant, "risen", nothing else. He did not get it but he was pleased with the result: "looks splendid", he noted in his diary.

David had a profound knowledge of heraldry and he never refused a request for a coat of arms and, as part of his policy of trying to improve standards, he designed dozens of school badges during the great increase in the numbers of schools in the post-war period. I was often struck by the parallels between the lives of Bishop John Geddes (1735-1799) and David McRoberts. Both had outstandingly successful and scholarly careers among non-Catholics in Scotland and yet both were prepared to go to the most extreme lengths to meet every demand made upon them by their fellow-Catholics. There is a letter (3rd January, 1790) in which Bishop Hay remonstrates with Geddes for making himself too cheap and a kind of slave to the people. I had continually lectured David on this very point but it took a long time for him to accept the substance of my argument: "thinks same has happened to me as happened to [Brother] Clare because I have been too much at everyone's beck and call"—the diary entry is dated 9th June, 1978, almost five months to the day before he suffered his stroke, but by that date the damage had been done and his acceptance of the warning was much too late.

David was fortunate that his appointments did enable him to cultivate his interests and gave him the time to build the reputation in the academic world he ultimately established for himself. By 1963, he had been twenty years at the diocesan seminary and a change was long overdue. In the early years of Archbishop Campbell's episcopate in Glasgow there had been a series of rather splendid rows between him and his chapter on future policy to which David decided to make his contribution in September, 1947, in an interview with the archbishop in which the latter was told how badly he was running his diocese. A certain coldness inevitably marked the relationships over the years between David and the Glasgow diocesan authorities, accentuated by incidents which, to the observer, appear to have been little more than personality clashes between two strong men of radically opposing views, Bishop Ward and David; in such circumstances, who can say where truth lies? Most of the issues which divided them have long since ceased to have any relevance; and it is pleasing to note, from a diary entry, that they made their peace in July, 1973, only a few months before James Ward's death.

But in 1963 things were different. Glasgow was determined that David should not succeed to the vacant rectorship of the seminary. The unfolding of events in the early months of that year led, eventually to his resignation. It was perhaps a severe attack of his recurrent illness, to which reference will shortly be made, which caused him such considerable distress in reaching this decision at that stage because the notion that it was time to move from the college had been in his mind for at least three years.

His resignation and subsequent posting to Carstairs was to prove that he was, in fact, in need of a change. The next nine years were probably the happiest and certainly the most productive of his life; suddenly everything he had worked for and trained himself to do became possible. Within the year, Bishop Scanlan had secured his promotion to domestic prelate to provide him with status should Bishop Ward be translated to Motherwell. The changed routine in his life brought its own freshness and invigoration, with its weekly visits to Edinburgh and Glasgow, the cultivation of his friendships in the universities and the learned societies, the increasing recognition of his scholarship. At Carstairs itself managers' and deanery meetings renewed old and made new friendships; there were endless discussions on the future of the farm, reminiscent of the interests of the clergy in an earlier age; there was a constant flow of visitors, all to be walked to the Roman camp; and there were visitors of a less peaceful kind, the seasonal scout camps in the grounds. Irish boys dutifully looking for confession and equally dutifully mounting guard at Benediction—"pipes, flags, bugle, last post—sounded devastating"—while Glasgow boys created their own brand of mayhem chasing cows in calf around the fields. All in all, he could note in his diary on 19th April 1967: "4th anniversary of my arrival at Carstairs . . . Happier today than I was four years ago."

But although it was a happy time for him the happiness was bought at a very great price. All his life, he had been ill, as a boy and as a man; indeed, if we accept the indiscretion of one of the bishops, it was the knowledge of his illness which precluded any prospect of his episcopal promotion; but, on that, it is doubtful if any of his friends would have considered his talents to be best suited to the office of bishop. Some of the entries in his diary for the last twenty years of his life are distressing in their record of how much he suffered from sickness and frequent blackouts, and how often he could not finish Mass because of physical exhaustion and nausea. When he moved to Edinburgh, it is noticeable how his time for celebrating Mass moves on later through the day and that, ominous as an indication of his condition, the phrase dies aliturgica begins to appear in the daily entries in his diary. He lived every day, he told me, in the hope that tomorrow would be better.

But, despite his own condition, his concern for his friends was ever present. It would be invidious, and possibly embarrassing, to mention those, especially priests who were the friends of his youth and who are still alive, of whom his letters speak in terms of heartfelt sympathy and admiration for their courage in affliction. His reaction to news of death was first to remember how much personally he owed to the help he had received from his dead friend. Two deaths in Holy Cross, Glasgow, in the early months of 1965, affected him very badly, Father Wycherley, a former colleague at Cardross and who had retailed to him only the previous summer that gossip had made him favourite to succeed to the vacant See of Aberdeen, and Father Norman Baird, one of his earliest students. When later in the same year he learned the true nature of J. K. Robertson's illness, he noted in his diary: "Thought of what a close friend he had been since those days at Marino in 1931. How, together, we had visited Horace's villa and never a thought then of Eheu fugaces." At Bishop Douglas's funeral, he was sufficiently unfashionable to remember all he owed to Ned Douglas from his days at Blairs and to note that the three minute panegyric did not mention that he had been Bishop of Motherwell. The passing of the years continued to diminish his circle of friends and his feelings became more open in the obituaries he composed for them; their true depth is best revealed perhaps in the entries in his diary in July, 1972, after the death of Father W. J. Anderson: "WJA's panegyric. Could hardly compose panegyric for emotion. Thought of WJA's many kindnesses and of his loneliness." Three days later, at the funeral, "Went into the sanctuary with ✠ JD who was celebrant. Eyes filled with tears and felt I was going to break down as I read panegyric. Only about fifteen to twenty clergy there." The requiem in Edinburgh, the funeral in Arbroath, and the journey back to Edinburgh made that day exhausting, emotionally and physically, for him. But a day which had been bitter in its sorrow ended on a note as unexpected as it was hopeful: "Left about 9 p.m. for train at 9.45. Porter came in, sat with me in train. Wanted to get his son, aged thirteen, baptised." The first of his fellow-ordinands to die was Father James Birnie, in November 1977. The requiem, as David noted in his diary, took place on the feast of the Dedication of the Lateran Basilica, the church in which they had been ordained: "thought much of him all day," he wrote. "We are all old and tired and one by one falling asleep." The sentiment is made additionally poignant by the fact that he himself was to die only twelve months later.

His flow of work did not cease, even when he moved in 1973 to Columba House in Edinburgh as Keeper of the Scottish Catholic Archives. Archbishop Scanlan had said, in 1967, that David was too old for the job and events were to justify that judgement. There was a major job to be done in putting the house in order and David lacked the physical resources to do it. Soon he had added a heart condition to his other illnesses. The limited task which he set himself at Columba House was to gather together as much as possible of the pre-1878 papers, with the knowledge that their indexing must be left to his successors.

His last years were clouded by persistent illness which would have caused most other men to retire, but for David there was still too much to do. A friend who visited him in hospital a week before he died found him planning his work for the next four years. But he was always dismayed by the fact that there were so few clergy willing to work in literary or historical fields. "I imagine our seminaries are largely responsible. The staffs at Blairs, Cardross and Drygrange never seem to contribute, even to the Glasgow Observer." So David in 1977, a lament for the lack of labourers in the vineyard. He would at least have been content if he had felt that the younger clergy were working in other worthwhile fields but it was their eccentricities which puzzled him. While he thought that those who had involved themselves in the self-styled charismatic movement should accept the logic of their position and join one of the sects of the pentecostal brethren.

The post-Vatican II world was one with which David felt little sympathy. As a young man, he had favoured change and as a historian studying the vicissitudes of the Church over the centuries, he was familiar with the need for change to meet changing circumstances. In England, David Knowles, a very great medieval historian, had felt compelled to enter the lists to publish a defence of Humanae Vitae but to David public controversy was wasteful of time and unproductive in result; but, since obituaries such as this are written to be read in the future as well as to commemorate the past, it may be of interest to record how the most outstanding Scottish Catholic scholar of his generation reacted to the immediate changes introduced in the wake of Vatican II. How far he judged matters correctly will be for history to decide.

Although he was no theologian, he had no difficulty in identifying the "new insights" as simply the old heresies writ fresh. The liturgical changes depressed him—maimed rites, as he somewhere describes them, with little of that liturgical orderliness and nothing whatsoever of the consoling beauty of the Church's traditional music, to quote another of his phrases. He could also be horrified by what he sometimes had to sit through—"a piper playing Campbeltown Loch is no substitute for the Missa de Angelis". The speed with which changes had been introduced seemed to show a lack of sensitivity: "one gets the impression that . . . are clutching at any gimmick just to give the impression that they are doing something. All that seems to result from this sort of thing is that the older generation are alienated while the younger generation are left quite unimpressed."

David considered that the introduction of concelebrated Masses had failed to realise the expectations anticipated by the liturgists and, in the event, had proved divisive: His objections went to the root of the matter. "I regard this present mania for large scale concelebrations as disastrous for public functions and as disastrous for the much talked of unity of the people of God. When one person celebrated the Tridentine High Mass, everyone else from the assistant priest and deacon down to the passkeeper at the door assisted him in the celebration of Mass. Everyone was made to feel that they were all taking part in one action, which was being performed in their name. Nowadays there is a very obvious division of the congregation into two camps—the layfolk and the non-concelebrating clergy and the obviously separate and exclusive group of concelebrants. To my mind, the division between celebrants and laity has been accentuated very considerably by this new fashion, which was supposed to wipe out differences."

This notice is already overburdened with quotations but David could speak for himself and the temptation to let him do so is very strong. It may be sufficient, however, to end with two thoughts on the state of the Church as he saw it in his last years. "I spent New Year's Day writing the obituary notice of poor old J. K. Robertson", he wrote in January, 1974. "It brought back an awful lot of memories and I could not help underlining the extraordinary change in mood between the Church that J. K. joined in 1931 and the Church in which he died in 1973 and I wondered, if J. K. had been born forty years later, is it possible that he would have become a Catholic?" The last time he appeared in public was in April, 1978, to preach at the hierarchy centenary Mass in Glasgow. "The sermon posed many problems because it is difficult to wax euphoric about our position at the present day. We passed our peak twenty years ago and there is no sign yet that our downward trend is going to be reversed in the near future. I decided that a history lecture would be safest in the circumstances."

It was remarkably fitting that his last public appearance should have been in St. Andrew's Cathedral. A great deal of enthusiasm was worked up in Glasgow in 1945 in favour of a new cathedral; David was one of the very few to argue for the retention of the old building, hallowed (as he wrote) by the devotion and love of generations of our fathers in the faith and in support of his case he cited the adage, quoted by Isaias, "Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it." And so it is fitting too that it is there that we should leave him, preaching in Andrew Scott's chapel, wearing the purple tippet of an honorary canon of Glasgow, a dignity to which Archbishop Winning had appointed him only four months earlier on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of his ordination.

Tributes paid to him after his death emphasised the inherent contradiction in his life: that a man whose death could be described as a loss not only to the Catholic Church but to the Scottish nation should at the same time be virtually unknown to either. Quiet, reserved, a private man, almost certainly a lonely man; and yet these words, too, contradict the warmth and the generosity of his friendships. Whatever the answer to these contradictions might be there can be little doubt of the judgement made by his own generation on his life and work: that he did more than anyone else in his lifetime, or even before him since John Geddes died, to make the Catholic Church in Scotland respected and accepted among non-Catholic scholars. The effect of this may not be immediately apparent but it is bound to become so in the next twenty or thirty years as the scholars influenced by him in his own generation pass on their respect to succeeding generations of students.

The world in which David moved and made his name was a non-Catholic world. It was one in which a Catholic priest was an unfamiliar figure; yet to know David was to be aware always of his priesthood and, if this was a handicap, it was one which he surmounted triumphantly. And, in an age in which the concept itself may be unfashionable, he can only adequately be described as a gentleman. Indeed, the secret of his success may lie in the description he himself applied to George Strachan, the seventeenth-century Scottish orientalist: "a scholar and a gentleman will find friendliness and congenial company in any land".

Rev. John McCabe — 8th January, 1979

The Rev. John McCabe was born at Stonehouse, Lanarkshire, where his parents John McCabe and Sarah Burns were then living, on 15th July, 1907. He was the third of a family of eight. His father had studied for the priesthood at the Royal Scots College, Valladolid, from 1894 to 1898 when ill-health forced him to return home. From a very early age, his son, John, entertained the same ambition. It was not to be realised until he was almost fifty years old.

John McCabe was educated at Our Lady's High School, Motherwell. His schooling came to an abrupt and unlooked-for end at the age of thirteen on his father's death. To help his mother support the family and keep it together, he began work with a firm of civil engineers. In his maturer years he was active in promoting the retreat movement at Craighead, Bothwell. He was also very much involved in the Catholic Young Men's Society at Mossend of which he became president, and in the Legion of Mary which continued to be a life-long interest. In 1943, his mother died and, two years later, he took the first tentative steps towards the priesthood when he went, at his own expense, to Campion House, Osterley, a Jesuit foundation where late vocations were given a grounding in the classics. Having satisfied his examiners, he was accepted by Bishop John Matheson for service in the Diocese of Aberdeen and sent to St. Edmund's College, Ware. He found the course a demanding one but on 30th May, 1953, his perseverance which had led him through laborious years in the world, through years of family duty fulfilled and the unwonted discipline of study, was finally rewarded when Bishop Francis Walsh, Bishop of Aberdeen, ordained him to the priesthood in the Church of the Holy Family, Mossend. He was then forty-six years old. He was one of four who were ordained that year for the Diocese of Aberdeen.

His first appointment was to St. Mary's Cathedral, Aberdeen. His record there was of a priest, pastorally concerned, who visited his district conscientiously, was faithful in his attendance on the elderly and sick and particularly on those in hospital and a source of help in the confessional. Father McCabe was not academically inclined or happy with abstract discussion and he had no mission to the intelligentsia. His ideal was the Church he had known as a layman and he was never really at home with the findings of Vatican II. But he was a prayerful priest and a hard worker. What more need be said?

In September, 1956, he was given his first parish. It was the country parish of St. Mary's, Chapeltown, in the wilds of Banffshire, once one of the most populous parishes in the diocese and a nursery of priests but then sadly diminished in numbers (a once thriving school was closed in his time). If Father McCabe did not find work in this new sphere commensurate with his energy, it is remarkable how this priest, accustomed all his life to the coal bings of Lanarkshire, made himself knowledgeable about the ways of the countryside and the rhythm of the seasons. If he was inclined to dragoon his parishioners into getting things done and done in his way, they admired his determination and never failed to recognise that, if he asked them to work hard, he worked hard himself even to carting his own peats. "I always felt", one of them said, "that he was terribly aware of the fact that he was a late vocation, almost to the point of an inferiority complex. He never told us much about his family or his life before entering the priesthood. Had he told us a bit about himself, I am sure that everyone would have admired him for what he had done." And rightly so.

He left Chapeltown in November, 1961, and no one was appointed in his place, the parish being amalgamated with the neighbouring parish of Tombae (today one priest is in charge of the three parishes of Chapeltown, Tombae and Tomintoul and resident in Tomintoul). The next years were spent in Aberdeen in charge of the Sacred Heart parish, Torry, and as chaplain to the prison at Craiginches, an office he fulfilled with fidelity and relish. There was the same attention to duty, the same hard work, the same expectation of the same unremitting toil on the part of his parishioners. From the beginning, he saw the necessity of a parochial hall; in May, of the following year, the foundations were laid and it was financed in the only way open to him, by annual sales-of-work. One assignment finished, he was ready for the next. He was scrupulous in his care of the fabric of his distinctive church, the work of a Belgian architect, C. J. Menart, Byzantine in design with a Greek Cross plan and interior walls of brick, hopefully waiting to be lined with marble. It is a pity that Father McCabe saw fit to cover these brick walls with plaster.

In 1972, this priest of seemingly iron constitution broke down in health and spent some time in hospital seriously ill. He was advised to seek a more equable climate and chose to go to Bulawayo where a cousin was living and where, his health improved, he was able to be of help to the cathedral clergy. He returned to Scotland in 1976. Another spell of work in the north-east would have been disastrous and, after serving for a time in the London area with contemporaries of St. Edmund's, Ware, he accepted the post of chaplain to the Little Sisters of the Poor at St. Augustine's Convent, St. Helier, Jersey. In the meantime, he was able to celebrate the silver jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood in his native parish of Mossend. He died in Jersey on 8th January, 1979.

His body was brought home to Mossend where the Bishop of Aberdeen, the Right Rev. Mario Conti, was the principal celebrant at the Funeral Mass in the Holy Family Church. The Bishop of Motherwell, the Right Rev. Francis Thomson, was present in the sanctuary and many of Father McCabe's former associates in the Catholic Young Men's Society in the body of the church. He was laid to rest with his parents in the cemetery at Stonehouse. May God grant this zealous, hard-working priest eternal rest.

Rev. Joseph Healy, D.D., Ph.D. — 19th January, 1979

Father Healy left instructions that there was to be no panegyric at his funeral, but a friend has contributed the following obituary.

Joseph Healy was born in the parish of Newmains in November, 1904, but within a short time of his birth, the family moved to the Fife coalfield and settled in Lochgelly. He had warm memories of the nuns in the local primary school, as their forms flickered in and out of his reminiscences along with those of his mother and his sister.

In due course, he went to Blairs, and thence to Rome. No one but the recipient can know the secret of a vocation, but there was no hint at any time that his destiny could have been other than it was. He was to be a priest; he became a priest. He took the means to the end through junior and senior seminaries, with a quite uncritical acceptance of the process. There was a professionalism, in the best sense of the word, about the preparation and the achievement. A good head for book-work and a studious disposition made that part of the road easy, and the companionship of his fellows made it all pleasant. He had the usual sacerdotal roster of inglorious wounds on playing fields, gaffes in class and choir (other peoples'!) and professorial quirks. During the summers in Marino he indulged his interest in music and built up a habit of prodigious reading in literature and history. Marino for him, of course, was the "old" villa; he had no sympathy for Archbishop Mackintosh's new building.

He was ordained in 1930, and his first move was to the United States where his family had settled. A short spell of pastoral life in Philadelphia confirmed him in his original choice of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. He was a curate in St. Patrick's, in Holy Cross, at the cathedral and in Falkirk. In the autumn of 1937, he was sent as locum tenens to East Calder, when Father James Toner became gravely ill, and was named the official parish priest in January, 1938. It was the beginning of a tenancy of over forty years.

That is a long period to chronicle. It began with a young man of thirty-two riding or pushing a bicycle around the homes of a small parish in depressed economic times, penny-pinching of necessity to pay the ordinary bills and have something left over for antependiums, winged cottas, Eton collars, plain-chant books and all the staples of the good liturgy of those days. Nor did age wither or custom stale all: there was still the occasional Missa Cantata in Latin as late as 1978, though not with quite the old panache. And there remained certainly the sense of the great dignity of the Service of God, in as fine a setting as could be provided.

That was possibly, for the outside observer, the main lesson of his pastorate. It chimed with his natural gift for getting on easily with children and young people who formed his choir and his altar boys, and who grew up to be faithful friends. Outside of those his converse with people was not always easy, because he was temperamentally more at ease with books than with persons. Like Goldsmith, he wrote better than he spoke, with a gift for a telling phrase or an apt quotation. His sermons for the great feasts, because they were carefully written and concisely composed, shone out like gems. He was very concerned, from the 'sixties onwards, about maintaining orthodoxy of belief in the new welter of instant theologies. He could become passionate on that score, yet sometimes, it must be confessed, about issues of which his parishioners were mostly unaware, and which his colleagues could not always relate to the depositum fidei. It was his outward expression of a deep faith and a conscientious professionalism.

To carry a small parish through so long and so critical a period was no small task. On the economic level alone it made great demands. He probably enjoyed living in the baronial setting of East Calder parish-house, but only close friends knew that the baron was also the gardener and the furnace-man, carefully counting parish pennies and lavishly contributing his own. He was greatly blessed in this respect (as was the parish) by the dedication and self-sacrifice of his devoted house-keeper and her family. His round of duty was interrupted once, in the early years, when a bone disease almost threatened amputation of a leg, and it inevitably slowed up with advancing age and failing eyesight. The Lord called him very suddenly, in his study, amid his books and papers. He left a message of the beauty of the House of God and the dignity of his service; and a void, after a pastorate of so many years, especially in the hearts of actual or former altar boys and choristers. They had the last word. They sang the Salve Regina over his grave. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. James M. Canon Lillis — 22nd January, 1979

The death took place peacefully at St. Charles' presbytery, High Calside, Paisley, on 22nd January, 1979, of Very Rev. James Martin Canon Lillis, parish priest of St. Charles' since November, 1968.

Born 1st November, 1902, in Kildysart, Co. Clare, he was educated at St. Flannan's College, Ennis, and St. Mary's College, Galway. He studied for the priesthood at St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny, and was ordained priest for Glasgow Archdiocese in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kilkenny, on 9th June, 1929.

He spent the first ten years of his priesthood at St. Bride's, Cambuslang. Father Hugh McDonald, pastor of St. Bride's, on Father Lillis' transfer to St. Laurence's, Greenock, said that Father Lillis "would be remembered at Cambuslang for his enthusiasm, energy and zeal, and especially for his work for the mens' Sacred Heart Confraternity. He had also made a great success of the boys' guild . . . and had organised a social study guild, the success of which could be measured by the fact that the guild was now considered an absolute necessity in the parish . . ." (Glasgow Observer, 12th April, 1940, p. 2.)

In 1939, he was transferred to St. Laurence's, Greenock, where he remained until 1950. In 1941, he was trapped with fellow priests beneath the debris of the blitzed and blazing St. Laurence's Church, Carnock Street, during the Greenock Blitz of that year. An observer of the time commented that Father Lillis "when released, displayed heroism of a high order. He would be remembered in Greenock for his kindness to the sick and troubled and for his tireless energy, the keynote of his character".

His stay in Greenock was summed up in a testimonial address to him in May, 1950: "Out of the ten years of your life given to our service, all but some months were spent sharing with us the grievous trials laid upon us as the result of the German air raids of 1941. For nearly five long years, living as you did two miles from the parish, your untiring devotion was a shining light illuminating the darkest shadows in the long history of the parish. It is a measure of your devotion that in all these five years, working under conditions which can only be described as atrocious, not one sick person died unbled or unconfessed or without anointing and holy viaticum . . . At Christmas, 1945, we saw the beginnings of the second spring in St. Laurence's . . . Then quickly the momentum of recovery and revival increased. The old traditions and spirit came soaring back . . . It was during this critical phase that your light shone brightest.

"Always, apparently, tireless, whether well or not so well, you went from strength to strength in your efforts to speed the revival. Soon the girls' guild, under your zealous guidance and leadership became a model not only in Greenock but further afield. In this connection, you brought to the young people, and through them to all of us, a new appreciation of music and drama, in the many and highly successful productions in the town hall . . . At the same time, through your work with the women's confraternity, you were tirelessly aiding and hastening the re-awakening of the people in our old and glorious parish . . . You will always have a special and indelible place in our history and memories . . ." This prediction was proved true when, almost thirty years later, a bus load of some forty ladies from St. Laurence's parish attended his funeral.

In 1950, Father Lillis got his first charge when given the united charge of Christ the King, Howwood, and Lochwinnoch. Writing in Claves Regni—St. Peter's College, Cardross, magazine—he traces the development of the parish in his pastorate; his providing the first presbytery in Howwood, a new church in Lochwinnoch and the establishment of Our Lady of Fatima Shrine and monthly vigil services in the grounds of Christ the King Church, Howwood. His modesty did not allow him to relate how he himself had dismantled a large hospital hut in Millport, transported it "in pieces via the port of Paisley to Lochwinnoch, and then re-assembled. Finally, the wooden structure was cement-finished. It was many months before 'Operation Prefab' was completed. But in May, 1955, to the great joy of us all, the church was opened by Bishop Black . . ." (op. cit. Vol. 23, No. 89, December 1957, pp. 55-56.)

In 1951, he established the vigil services during the summer months—May to October—in honour of Our Lady of Fatima. Two years later, Bishop James Black dedicated a new shrine of Our Lady of Fatima after Father Lillis had personally brought the statues from Portugal. Each year since then, hundreds of people have participated in the vigil services. They come from various parts of the West of Scotland.

On succeeding to St. Fergus' parish, Ferguslie Park, Paisley, in 1959, he undertook a vast programme which included the setting up of many parochial organisations. His work was for the good of the whole community of that area, as seen in his identification with the Christian Tenants' Association which had three candidates returned to Paisley Corporation.

He launched a fund for building a new permanent church at St. Fergus' and had its design on the drawing boards when his health began to deteriorate and he was transferred to St. Charles', Paisley, in November, 1968. One of his last acts as pastor of St. Fergus' was to welcome, to Ferguslie Park, the Little Sisters of the Assumption.

At St. Charles', Paisley, he carried out extensive renovations to the church and initiated a re-decoration scheme. He was to spend the last ten years of his life with the people of St. Charles' and when forced a few months before his death to retire, he asked Bishop McGill to be allowed to stay with them, a request readily acceded to. Bishop McGill said that Canon Lillis—he became a Canon in 1972—got to know his parishioners because he was "a priest who believed in the apostolate of tapping on doors".

Ten priests who served as curate with Canon Lillis concelebrated his Funeral Mass with Bishop Stephen McGill. His senior curate for several years and latterly administrator and fellow County Clare man, Father James Quinn, officiated at the graveside in the priests' plot in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. "Thank God for the life of this good priest, for his family who gave him to the Church and for those Irish priests who have served the Church so faithfully in Scotland in the past", said Bishop McGill in his homily.

In his youth, he was quite athletic and was noted for his ability in hurling and Gaelic football. His success on the field stemmed from his determination to win. He carried that same determination throughout his almost fifty years in the priesthood when he spared neither time nor effort to promote those things he was ordained for—the good of the Church and the salvation of souls. He had a deep devotion to the Mother of God especially through her rosary. Unswerving in his dedication to the Church, the secret of the many successes of his priestly life lay in his refusal to take "No" for an answer.

As his mortal remains await the resurrection in an exile's grave far from the County Clare he loved, may his great and generous soul rest in peace.

Rev. Gerald Patrick McCallion — 27th January, 1979

Father Gerald P. McCallion, first parish priest of Our Lady of Loreto, Dalmuir, died on 27th January, 1979.

He was born in Dumbarton, 27th November, 1925, where his father was a well known builder who had much to do with the repair and maintenance of the mother church of Dumbarton.

He began his primary schooling at St. Patrick's, Dumbarton, in 1930, transferring to the Convent of Notre Dame, Clerkhill, Dumbarton, in 1932, where he remained until 1937. Both these schools not only educated him in the "three Rs", but also gave him a firm foundation in the faith.

He had his first taste of secondary education when he moved to St. Patrick's High, Dumbarton, in 1937, where he remained for only a year. The stirrings of a vocation began to express themselves and he sought admission from the Church authorities to study for the priesthood. He was duly accepted and, in 1938, he entered St. Mary's College, Blairs, Aberdeen. He was to remain there for six years, during which time he added philosophy to his normal course of studies. In 1945, he was transferred to St. Peter's College, Bearsden and finally from 1947 to 1949 he completed his theological studies in St. Sulpice, Paris, from where he gained his Baccalaureate in Sacred Theology. In all the colleges at which he studied, he was well liked by everyone because of his happy disposition and quiet manner.

He returned to Glasgow and on 29th June, 1949, he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Campbell. His first taste of parish life was a brief spell from July to November, 1949, in St. Michael's, Parkhead. He was then transferred to St. Vincent de Paul's, Thornliebank, where he remained for eight years. In 1957, he was again transferred this time to St. Charles', Kelvinside. He laboured in Kelvinside for eleven years, and at the end of this time, the Archbishop of Glasgow called on his experience and sent him as senior assistant to Father Patrick Smith at Our Holy Redeemer's, Clydebank. He spent four happy years there marred only by the fact that it was to Father Gerry the task fell of making all the funeral arrangements on the tragic and sudden death of Father Smith, thus severing a happy relationship.

He was again transferred, this time, to the diminishing parish of St. John's, Portugal Street, as assistant to Canon Duffin. He remained there for three years until finally he was appointed to a parish of his own and became the founder-priest of the parish of Our Lady of Loreto, Dalmuir.

In all the parishes he served, he was much revered and loved. His was a full and dedicated apprenticeship. It was no surprise therefore that given his first charge, he threw himself wholeheartedly into all forms of priestly activity in the new parish, always conscious of the need to establish organizations and activities on a good solid foundation so that the primary purpose of these things would always be the spiritual improvement of his parishioners. His motivation was a piety that was simple in the best sense of the word, his love of God and his deep devotion to the holy eucharist and in every decision his confidence in Our Lady's protection was unlimited.

His vivid and interesting personality made him widely known, his humorous banter and generosity of spirit brought him many friends. Every human being interested him and he had a ready understanding of people and their many problems and a generous tolerance of their short-comings. He was particularly noted for his great love of the sick members of the parish, his keen interest in the life of the school and the children of the parish and his deep concern for the afflicted and the needy.

The acquisition of the former Church of Scotland building gave him his greatest satisfaction since it was to become the centre of Catholic life in the parish as Our Lady of Loreto, a home for Our Blessed Lord in the holy eucharist. With the loyal co-operation of the men of the parish, he transformed this old church, within a very short time, into a lovely edifice of Catholic worship.

Unfortunately, Father Gerry's health began to deteriorate and for many months he laboured under the cross of sickness, until finally on 27th January, 1979, he suddenly collapsed and died shortly afterwards.

The Requiem Mass for Father Gerald McCallion proved to be the greatest and yet the saddest occasion in the short life of the parish of Our Lady of Loreto. The Archbishop, with his two auxiliary bishops, a great number of his fellow priests along with many faithful from the various parishes in which he served, attended the Requiem, a tribute to the very high regard in which Father McCallion was held.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. James Macdonald — 28th January, 1979

James Macdonald was born on 11th June, 1888, in the little township of Drimnin on the coast of Morvern in Argyll. His father was gardener on the estate of the Gordon family and there were thirteen children.

St. Columba's, Drimnin, could hardly be described as a "parish", but for forty years until the first Bishop of Argyll and the Isles came to Oban, Drimnin had been the only place in Argyll, apart from Campbeltown in the extreme south, in which there was a resident priest. The beautiful little church had been built by the eminent Catholic lawyer, Sir Charles Gordon, in 1838, and had been a centre from which the priest served the few Catholics scattered around the west coast of Argyll and in Mull and other islands, as well as in the little town of Oban. When James was born, the cathedral had been erected in Oban, and the last priest in Drimnin had died in 1887. Henceforth the Catholics of Mull and Morvern were visited as opportunity offered by the Oban clergy: this became less and less frequent as the little congregation dwindled, and today there is only the ruin of the little chapel to mark the site of the old centre of the local church.

The Macdonald family and other Catholic children attended the local school, but depended entirely on their parents for their religious education. As a family, they were all known for their piety and knowledge of the faith to the end of their days.

James went to the newly-opened Blairs College in 1904 and five years later, he went to France. After four years at Issy and one at Paris, he was ordained priest there on 4th July, 1914. He spent the first five years as assistant in Lochaber and Fort William, before taking up his first charge in Laggan in Badenoch. He was there for about four years—considered a long time even then for such a remote and wild area—with very few parishioners and great poverty of life. In 1923, he was appointed to Northbay in Barra and in 1929 to St. Mun's in Glencoe. The years in Barra were the happiest in his life and he is remembered there for his quiet charm, his boyish good humour and his old-world piety. In Glencoe, however, he showed the first signs of the nervous affliction that was to make him resign his parish in 1933 and work in various parishes of the diocese as assistant priest. After World War II, he spent some years in Paris, and in his old age retired to Dublin in the care of the Society of St. John of God. There he died on 28th January, 1979, in the ninety-first year of his life, and the sixty-fifth of his priesthood.

Those who knew him in the last years of his life pay tribute to his deep faith and his profound devotion to Our Lord in the blessed sacrament, and the simple boyishness of his approach to life. May he rest in peace.

Rev. John Joseph Sheary — 29th January, 1979

Father Sheary died in the Mater Hospital in Dublin on Monday, 29th January, 1979. He was thirty-seven.

The news of his death came to St. Joseph's, Faifley, shortly after 3 p.m. that afternoon. By 7.30 p.m., the church was filled to overflowing with parishioners and people from all parts of the diocese and beyond who had heard the news by word of mouth, over taxi radios, and in all the mysterious ways that news is spread. All this, and the Mass that followed that night, were a fitting tribute to a priest who had lived his short life so intensely and in such a hurry.

John Sheary was born in Dublin on 23rd August, 1941. He was the son of Patrick and Josephine Sheary. He first went to school at Holy Faith Convent where he spent two years, and after that to O'Connell School in North Richmond Street where he remained for ten years. In September, 1959, he entered St. Peter's College, Wexford, to study for the priesthood. There on 6th June, 1965, he was ordained a priest.

His first appointment on coming to Glasgow was to Good Shepherd parish, Dalbeth. Little more than a year later, he was sent to Our Lady and St. Margaret's, Kinning Park, where he laboured for about five years. From there he was transferred to St. Joseph's, Faifley, where, for seven and a half years, he spent the most significant part of his life as a priest. In September, 1978, he was appointed spiritual director to the students of St. Peter's College, Cardross. Five months later he died after a short illness.

In this ordinary setting, Father Sheary lived an extraordinary life.

He was a fine figure of a man; tall and slim. His face in repose was naturally serious and his eyes reflected an inner peace; but the smile and the laughter were never far away. He was obviously a man of great faith and deep personal holiness, spending hours each day wrapped in the stillness of prayer. Apart from that luxury, his life was one of feverish activity. He drove himself as he drove his car—recklessly. Those who lived with him or were given a lift felt both the fear and the thrill. He was at once the best of priestly companions, the tireless servant of the people, and the despair of a house-keeper trying to provide meals on time or keep his room tidy. But everyone recognised him as a man totally dedicated to his priesthood. For him, nothing else mattered, and it showed in his life and work wherever he went. No one could forget the dignity and sincerity with which he preached the word of God or the earnestness with which he offered up the Holy Mass.

His years in St. Joseph's, Faifley, were the flowering time of his priesthood. As elsewhere, the parish was the priority in his life, no matter what other work he undertook. In the course of his pastoral visitation, he came to know everyone by name, children included. Everyone remembers him with affection, especially those whom he tended in sickness and trouble. He had an uncanny understanding of human strength and weakness, and a heart that responded to every human need. A comment by a parishioner sums it all up: "Father Sheary listened patiently to all your troubles; he gave you good advice; and he never threw you over when you failed to measure up."

A life-long Pioneer, he breathed new life into the Pioneer Association in Clydebank Deanery and founded a branch for the youth in St. Columba's School. As well as that, he spent considerable time with alcoholics helping them on the hard road back to sobriety. Here, inevitably, his efforts were often in vain; but there were never any hopeless cases in Father Sheary's book.

His great love of his own home and family made him exceptionally sympathetic wherever he found trouble and unhappiness in homes, and people have said of him: "If Father Sheary could not solve your difficulties, he managed somehow or other to make them bearable." This concern led him into extra work with the Catholic Marriage Advisory Council and in organising courses for engaged couples in the area.

When he was asked to go as spiritual director to St. Peter's College, he literally agonised over the appointment, doubting his ability to undertake such a task. Of course, when it came to the bit, he gave himself completely to this work as he had done to everything in his priestly life. What his future would have been had he lived is an irrelevant question; for, in the providence of God it was not to be. Like Pope John Paul I, in a short time he had fulfilled the whole purpose of his saintly life.

In the minds of the people of Faifley, Father Sheary never really left the parish, and so, it seemed natural that the chief Requiem Mass in Scotland should take place in St. Joseph's Church at the same time as the funeral in Dublin. Once again, the response was a fitting tribute to his life and work. Once again, the voice of the people sums it up perfectly: "Father Sheary entered so closely into all our lives that, at his Funeral Mass, everyone was the chief mourner."

Very Rev. William Canon Maccabe — 13th February, 1979

Canon William Maccabe, parish priest of St. Machan's, Lennoxtown, died in Leith Hospital on 13th February, 1979, in the eighty-fourth year of his age and the fifty-seventh of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass celebrated in St. Machan's on 16th February prior to the interment at Lennoxtown, the following panegyric was delivered by Father Keith O'Brien, spiritual director of St. Andrew's College, Dryrange.

There is a quotation from a French writer, Lacordaire, which is frequently found on the back of ordination cards and which I would like to read for you this morning:

"To live in the midst of the world without desiring its pleasures:
 To be a member of every family, yet belonging to none;
 To share all suffering;
 To penetrate all secrets;
 To heal all wounds;
 To go from man to God and offer him their prayers;
 To return from God to man to bring pardon and hope;
 To have a heart of gold for charity, and a heart of bronze for chastity;
 To teach and to pardon, to console and to bless always.
 My God, what a life!
 And it is yours, O priest of Jesus Christ."

"My God, what a life and it is yours, O priest of Jesus Christ!" We might be tempted to say this morning: "My God, what a life—and it was yours, William Canon Maccabe."

Born in West Calder on 29th August, 1895, a student for the priesthood at Blairs and Rome, ordained priest in Rome itself in 1922 with his first Mass being served by Canon McGarvey of Kilsyth, himself happily with us this morning; a curate and parish priest in this archdiocese from then till just a few days ago; a canon of the Metropolitan Chapter of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, from February, 1950—being appointed by the late Archbishop Andrew Joseph McDonald; later canon theologian of the archdiocese; for a number of years the Provost of the Metropolitan Chapter, and from 1949 till his death just a few days ago, the parish priest of this parish of St. Machan's in Lennoxtown.

A man in his eighty-fourth year, a priest for over fifty-six years, yet throughout it all Canon Maccabe still preserved that simplicity and innocence which endeared him to so many people, especially in this area of West Stirlingshire which he loved so much.

It was back in 1907 that the canon began his studies for the priesthood, going to St. Mary's College, Blairs, as a young boy. He went straight to Rome from Blairs where he is remembered as an extremely competent choir master, and also for his prowess on the football field—this latter love remaining with him throughout his life and showing itself in the frequent pilgrimages which he made on Saturday afternoons somewhere outwith his parish.

On returning home from Rome, he was appointed curate to St. Patrick's parish in Edinburgh, then to St. Peter's for a spell, then returning to St. Patrick's for a further period. He himself used to speak of his times in these parishes when neither priest nor people had very much of this world's goods—yet were rich in the love of God. It was one of his proud boasts that in admitting the congregation for early Mass in St. Patrick's he would frequently admit the person whose cause for canonisation is now advancing so rapidly—namely the Venerable Margaret Sinclair.

He went from St. Patrick's to his first full charge—in Balerno, this being followed by a period in Fife, in St. Kenneth's parish, Lochore. In this parish, a popular story about the canon was that he used to visit every home in his parish every week. When challenged on the apparent impossibility of this particular pastoral work in the large parish of St. Kenneth, Canon Maccabe did not immediately deny the story—but I believe that what actually did happen was that the canon carefully visited a street in a different area of the parish each day—so that he was at least seen all over his parish in the course of a week.

After further fruitful ministries in Loanhead for three years and Bonnybridge for eleven, the canon was appointed to this parish of St. Machan's here in Lennoxtown, in October, 1949. It was here that he really put down his roots, and I am sure did much of his most fruitful work as a priest. Perhaps here we can think again of those words of Lacordaire—he was indeed a member of every family, yet belonging to none: he did bring men to God and offered him their prayers; he returned from God to men to bring them pardon and hope.

If there was one task at which he excelled, and which he loved deeply, it was visiting his people in their homes. "Be with your people in their homes—that is one of the primary tasks of the priest" he used to say. And he would encourage every priest whom he met to continue in this task. Just a few days before his death, I was visiting him in St. Anne's, Musselburgh, along with a student for the priesthood—and again he repeated his words of advice to this young man—"visit your people, be with your people in their homes". Not only did he visit his parishioners in their homes, but he rejoiced at being with the young parishioners in school and he was assiduous in his visitation of the sick. He would insist on taking his turn at visiting Lennox Castle Hospital, tending the sick there, and would celebrate Mass there on Sundays when required.

Because of his expanding parish, and his desire that the needs of the people of the different areas would be best served, he first of all saw to the establishment of Blanefield parish, and then the parish of Milton of Campsie which also cared for the people of Torrance—despite the fact that he had a great personal attachment to these smaller outposts of his parish.

It was his great joy that he was enabled to continue his priestly work in Lennoxton until his death. Even in St. Raphael's, this Christmas, he spoke of the good people here, of the reports he had from Father Boyd of the Christmas crowds, he even mentioned the number of covenants he had and also asked me to guess what his Christmas Crib Collection would be! His interest in the parish, in the deanery, which he so often described as the best deanery in the archdiocese, in the chapter and its work in the diocese as a whole, was never ending—news of his people, news of his brother priests, news from Drygrange, news of appointments—his mind was alive and active right to the end.

Even at the end, on being admitted to Leith Hospital, he threw the doctor on reception into confusion. Every question he was asked was answered by another question! When asked his name, date of birth, address, occupation—the canon swiftly proceeded to carry out a similar interrogation of the doctor.

We might ask what we can learn from the life of a priest such as Canon Maccabe. And the answer would be quite simply the example of the love of God and the love of neighbour to which we are all called.

The love of God: he loved his daily celebration of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, he was regular, almost to the point of scrupulosity in the saying of his breviary and prayers, and he came on his regular visits to his old friend, Canon McGarvey, to renew his sorrow for his sins and his love of God in his reception of the sacrament of reconciliation. Even in hospital, his well-thumbed breviary, his rosary beads, his prayer books, his books of meditations with pages almost blackened from age and use, were never far from his side.

And his love of neighbour: I have mentioned already his love for his people, young and old, and his care for them. I think he had, in his affections, a special place for nuns. He never returned to Rome for a holiday, he was never even in Lourdes, but he usually spent part of his holiday elsewhere in Scotland, or in Ireland, making sure he could visit his nun friends and celebrate Mass daily with them. And I know that the nuns in St. Raphael's where he was a regular visitor, were the frequent recipients of his famous boxes of chocolates.

"A bit old-fashioned", "slightly out of date", "should have retired years ago". It is not for us to pass judgment on these things. But the canon was only old-fashioned and out of date if it is old-fashioned and out of date to pray, to visit one's people, to try to be a good priest. "Should have retired years ago!" Perhaps! But it was love of the exercise of his parish ministry that kept him working; it was love of the people of this parish and his desire to serve them! And he was enabled to continue this work, to achieve his ambition of "dying with his boots on", because of the kindness and consideration of the cardinal, because of the unfailing and ever-ready help of his willing assistant, Father Boyd, on whom he called and relied upon more and more, in latter years because of the additional help of Father Forrester, and because of your love of him, and your understanding and kindness in his last years.

As we gather today to pray for the happy repose of his soul let us think of two statements made in the latter half of last year on the priesthood: "I hear people saying today that the priests have lost their identity cards. It is not so. Let's not lose too much time in asking who we are, because it is not a question of defining our priesthood, but of living it."—Pope John Paul I.

Canon Maccabe had no identity crisis—he knew he was a priest—and he knew exactly why he was a priest.

"Priests! I ask you—pray and get close to your people. Be among the people. In full loyalty to your vocation of following the poor, the chaste and the obedient Christ."—Pope John Paul II.

Yes, we pray for Canon Maccabe.

Those statements on the priesthood sum up all his ideals of the priesthood—as they should sum up ours. But we pray for him. Like us he was a frail human being. He had his faults and failings. He would have been the first to admit that he did not always live up to the standards of the Great High Priest, Jesus Christ.

May this same High Priest, the Master to whom he so frequently referred, now forgive him all his wrong-doing and welcome him into his final home in heaven.

May he soon hear the words: "Well done, you good and faithful servant", and be asked to take possession of the kingdom prepared for him from the foundation of the world.

Rev. Kevin Barry — 21st February, 1979

"His goodness shall follow me always to the end of my days", quoted Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley from the responsorial psalm in the Funeral Mass for Father Kevin Barry, parish priest of Houston in St. Fillan's Church, Houston. He said these words reflected the sentiments of Father Barry in his last days—sentiments of gratitude for his priesthood and for all that made up his thirty-two years in that priesthood.

The 138-year-old church was filled to overflowing with many people standing in the churchyard for the Requiem Mass. There was a large representation of priests from the West of Scotland and some from St. Andrews and Edinburgh. Bishop McGill, thanking all for coming to the Mass, made special reference to the presence of ministers of the local Churches.

On its way to St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead, the cortege went through Johnstone where Father Barry was assistant for ten years at St. Margaret's and parish priest at St. Anthony's, Spateston, for three years. Large numbers of former parishioners lined the main thoroughfare in tribute to a priest who served them so well. Father James Keenaghan, his successor at St. Fillan's officiated at the graveside.

Tracing Father Barry's career, Bishop McGill recalled some historians' contention that St. Patrick was born in present-day Dunbartonshire and how he had gone from Scotland to convert the Irish. The bishop said that the Irish had more than paid back that debt by their service to the Church in Scotland in subsequent centuries. That day they had gathered around the mortal remains of one who gave himself unremittingly to the service of the people in the West of Scotland.

Bishop McGill proceeded to outline Father Barry's life—born in Mallow, Co. Cork, on 1st November, 1921, educated at St. Colman's College, Fermoy (Co. Cork), St. Patrick's College, Carlow, where he was ordained priest, on 3rd June, 1946, for Glasgow. He served for a few months in 1946 at Christ the King, King's Park, Glasgow; was assistant at St. Margaret's, Johnstone, 1946-47; St. Charles', Paisley, 1947-60; St. Margaret's, Johnstone, for a second stint 1960-69, latterly becoming administrator in the declining years of Canon John F. O'Donnell. Because of his years in the mother parish of St. Margaret and his extensive knowledge of the people and locality he was asked by Bishop McGill in 1969 to undertake the establishment of the new parish of St. Anthony, Spateston. He soon knit together a good nucleus of people to form a strong parish and had set in motion the machinery for building the new church of St. Anthony. Ill-health made it impossible for him to stay longer than three years. In 1972, he was transferred to the old established parish of St. Fillan, Houston, the mother parish of the entire area (founded in 1841), where he once more had scope for the zeal and industry he had displayed at nearby St. Margaret's and St. Anthony's. He undertook an extensive renovation scheme of the church and hall and then of the presbytery.

His almost thirty-three years in the priesthood, said Bishop McGill, were beset by almost constantly recurring ill-health. He suffered intensely but he used his suffering to help others in theirs. He was not one to force himself on people but his own kind personality made him loved by all.

He was gifted with a clear mind, with a facility to grasp the essence or core of any subject or problem. He was a good speaker, forthright preacher and an able communicator at all levels. He was an assiduous worker as seen in his early years at St. Charles', Paisley, where his stay coincided with the physical expansion of that parish. He had a gift in being able to muster together a band of men and sustain their enthusiasm in various parish projects as was in evidence at St. Charles', Paisley, during what might be called the second spring of the parish after World War II. At St. Margaret's, Johnstone, as administrator, he was responsible for implementing the liturgical reforms of Vatican II and for the introduction of planned giving.

His years at St. Charles', 1947-60, were to a great extent the transitional years of the old hospital service to the National Health Service. He played an important role in bettering the relations between the Church and the nursing administration at the Royal Alexandra Infirmary, Paisley, the Craw Road Institution, Paisley, and Dykebar Mental Hospital, Paisley. He continued that same role when he went to Houston in dealing with the several institutions of that parish.

From his childhood, he was gifted at games and sport. He revelled in a challenge whether in sport or games or the things of life. He had a knack of being able to concede defeat to his victors. He displayed these characteristics when he faced the greatest challenge of his life, his terminal illness and death. The end came peacefully at the Bon Secours Hospital, Langside, on 21st February, 1979, fortified by the rites of the Church he loved so much and served so loyally. His mortal remains await the resurrection in the priests' plot of St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Francis Canon Hamilton — 15th March, 1979

Canon Francis Hamilton, pastor of St. James', Renfrew, 1949-74, died in hospital on 15th March, 1979, in Laconia, New Hampshire, U.S.A., after a short illness.

Born in Rutherglen, on 16th July, 1893, he went as a young man to America and after service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during World War I he returned to Scotland to study for the priesthood. He began his studies in 1919 as one of the first batch of students to enter Campion Hall, Osterley. He proceeded to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and was ordained priest in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, on 29th May, 1926, for Glasgow Archdiocese. He was assistant at: St. Augustine's, Langloan, Lanarkshire, 1926-40; St. Joseph's (North Woodside Road), Glasgow, 1940-41; St. Patrick's, Shieldmuir, Lanarkshire, 1941-46.

In 1946, he was appointed parish priest of St. Conval's, Linwood, and three years later he assumed charge of St. James', Renfrew. He was to spend the next twenty-five years of his priesthood in Renfrew before retiring in 1974 through age and infirmity. Shortly afterwards, he went to America to reside with members of his family in Laconia, New Hampshire.

In May, 1976, he celebrated his golden jubilee as a priest. In a special message of congratulations, Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley said: "You have been first, foremost and always a dedicated priest of the Lord in the service of his people.

"The priestly spirit which animated you was also shown in your work as diocesan director of the Priests' Eucharistic League, as first diocesan director of the Union of Catholic Mothers and as first director of the diocesan branch of the St. Margaret of Scotland Adoption Society.

"The esteem and honour in which you were held was publicly manifested by my venerable predecessor, Bishop Black, when in 1957 he invited you to become a member of the cathedral chapter and one of his trusted advisors—an office, I am glad to say you have continued during my episcopate . . ."

In expressing his own sentiments to the jubilarian on the same occasion Father Bernard J. Canning who had been assistant with Canon Hamilton for twelve and a half years said Canon Hamilton "always displayed a concern for the underprivileged, the down and out, the improvident, in whom he tried to see the suffering Christ . . . as one whose life was beset with almost constant sickness and ill health, he knew how important it was to sympathise with the sick of his parish and beyond it. He was one who appreciated his priesthood. The words of the American poetess Marie L. Weldon on a priest's jubilee could well be applied to Canon Hamilton's sharing of the priesthood of Christ:

"Years of intimacy with the Eucharistic King,
 Years of growth in love of family and old friends,
 Years of welcoming new friends in an ever widening circle,
 Years when death of dear ones called forth hidden fortitude,
 Years of search and finding Christ in others,
 Years when joy outweighed the stress of living,
 Years when only the Living Bread brought peace,
 Years of loving service to the Lord and to his people."

Vatican II in its decree on the sacred ministry teaches that by their vocation and ordination priests of the New Testament are indeed set apart in a certain sense, within the midst of God's people. For Father Francis Hamilton, the people of God were to be the parishioners of St. Augustine's, Langloan, St. Joseph's (North Woodside Road), Glasgow, in the difficult and hazardous years of World War II, St. Patrick's, Coatbridge, under his illustrious brother Mgr. Alex Hamilton. In 1946, he got a call to serve the people of Renfrewshire—first at St. Conval's, Linwood, and then three years later at St. James', Renfrew.

In Renfrew, he set himself the task not merely of paying off debt, which he effectively did, but of revitalising the parish that had suffered the consequences of World War II. His own personal example of priestly holiness of life was instrumental under the grace of God in bringing his people closer to God. He not only told his people to pray but he showed them the way by his own devotion to Christ in the eucharist. He was to be seen in the church a half hour each morning before Mass making his daily contact with Christ, and after Mass his equally long thanksgiving gave him additional sustenance for the day ahead. He did this faithfully throughout his long life and at times when he could scarcely walk. The parishioners of Renfrew recall his drive to get them to the monthly holy hour which for him was a special encounter with God.

Completely committed to the people he served, Canon Hamilton was Catholic in every sense:

- He was mission-minded, supporting quietly but with enthusiasm the Pope's own missionary organisation, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, the Holy Childhood Society. To St. Peter's Native Clergy Fund he made an annual contribution in thanksgiving for his own priesthood.
- He was a great advocate of the power of the Catholic press and the apostolate of the written word.
- His practical concern for those in need went beyond even the grave in that he would never allow anyone to suffer the stigma or indignity of a pauper's funeral or grave.
- To the rich and poor alike he gave the same consideration.

It has been observed that the training for the priesthood is a long and searching experience. It is not merely that the priest must have the professional knowledge and skill which are necessary in every calling but he must have, moreover, the mind that was in Christ, those lofty ideals, those disinterested ambitions, that burning zeal for Christ, for his Church and for souls. It can be said without fear of contradiction that Canon Hamilton pursued those high ideals to the last day of his life. At his bedside on that last day was an old battered and well-worn book on the priesthood—The Priest's Companion by B. F. Marcetteau, S.S. Canon Hamilton was indeed a priest to the end.

Mgr. Matthew Provost Kinsella, Vicar-General of Paisley, representing Bishop Stephen McGill, was principal concelebrant of the Requiem Mass with ten priests in St. Raphael's Church, Manchester, New Hampshire. In his opening remarks, Mgr. Kinsella conveyed the condolences of Bishop McGill and expressed appreciation of the work done for the Church in the West of Scotland by the Canon and by his brother Mgr. Alexander Hamilton, late of St. Mary's, Hamilton, Lanarkshire, in giving over 100 years' service to the Church. The Church had reason to be grateful to the Hamilton family.

Bishop Odore Gendron of Manchester (New Hampshire) presided in sanctuary and gave the final absolutions after Mass. Father Bernard J. Canning, former assistant of St. James', Renfrew, delivered the homily and afterwards officiated at the graveside in the family plot in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Bedford, New Hampshire.

The U.S. Army was represented at the funeral in recognition of Canon Hamilton's service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France in World War I. The mahogany casket was draped with the U.S. flag which was subsequently presented to the oldest surviving sister, Miss Catherine Hamilton.

St. James', Renfrew, paid its own tribute to the Canon a week later, when Bishop Stephen McGill was principal celebrant of Requiem Mass before a packed congregation. May he rest in peace.

Rev. John Martin — 20th March, 1979

Father John Martin was born in Gowna, Co. Cavan on 24th October, 1904, and like every true son of Breffni, he was proud of his native heath. At his mother's knee, and in the shelter of an Irish Catholic home, he learned to live with God, day by day. When his days at the primary school were over, he left home for St. Patrick's College, Cavan, where he progressed in knowledge under the stern and vigilant eyes of the priests of that era. The discipline was strict, but it did not deter young John in his desire to pursue his vocation to the priesthood. He was accepted as a student in St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny, and joined the ranks of young men who would devote their lives to the spread of the faith in many lands. He was ordained priest in the cathedral, Kilkenny, on 9th June, 1929, the Feast of St. Columba. Like Columba, his mission field was Scotland.

Father John arrived in Scotland and, after a very short spell in St. Mary's, Pollokshaws, he received a permanent appointment to St. Patrick's, Anderston, where he was to remain for twenty years. At that time, St. Patrick's had an enormous Catholic population who lived for the most part in overcrowded cramped conditions. So many changes have taken place in that part of the city that it is difficult to visualise what it was like, back in 1929 and the 1930s. Unemployment brought poverty and hunger and undernourished children fell easy victims to T.B., diphtheria, scarlet fever and various other diseases. The rent man, the club man or the inspector from the Means Test Department added to the problems of the underprivileged. To people like these, Father John was a gift from heaven. He listened attentively to their tales of woe and gave encouragement and hope to those in distress. He gave more than hope—he gave money and the unscrupulous looked upon him as a "soft mark". To be deceived by the casual caller did not worry Father John—it tickled his sense of fun and he could recall these experiences with a smile. Life in the presbytery in those days was extremely pleasant, providing a welcome haven from the rigours of parish visitation. With such priests as Father Andy Lynch, Father Larry Brady and others of a similar mould as fellow curates, it was little wonder that Father John really enjoyed the company of priests, and this was something which remained with him all his life. He loved priests and they loved him. For six years or a little more he had charge of the junior girls' guild and when Father Andy Lynch died, he took over the senior guild which at that time filled the church on communion Sunday to capacity. The girls of those days became the mothers of the families who moved into what became known as the "slum clearances" in pre-war days, and the housing estates of the post-war era. As Father Martin moved from St. Patrick's to St. James', Crookston, St. Joseph's and St. Teresa's, he met his "girls" once again. He had a remarkable gift of remembering names and he could pinpoint resemblances years afterwards. Everyone likes to be remembered and being recognised was a joy to all. It was an obvious pleasure to Father John too as any onlooker could easily detect. During the war years, death paid a call to many a door and that was when Father John was at his best, bringing consolation and comfort to the broken-hearted and inspiring them with hope of meeting their loved ones who had gone before.

The post-war years were difficult with rationing and controls of various kinds still necessary to ensure some kind of equality of distribution. It was in 1949 that Father Martin left St. Patrick's to take over virgin territory and establish the new parish of St. James', Crookston. He pioneered the work and in a very short time his new congregation had a church of their own—not the imposing building of today, but a building capable of satisfying the spiritual needs of the people.

From the growing parish of St. James, Father Martin was recalled to the city—to the crumbling tenements and similar conditions he had known in his early days in St. Patrick's. He became parish priest of St. Joseph's, North Woodside Road, at a time when the planners were engaged in building access roads, fly-overs and generally tearing the heart out of an old and noble parish. The presbytery had been built many years previously to house a religious community and was much too big for normal parish needs. There was a fair amount of renovating to be tackled in the presbytery and the church and with dwindling resources and a falling population this was no easy task. However, undaunted, Father Martin undertook this work and he enjoyed the experience as much as any other duty he was asked to shoulder. The parishioners of St. Joseph's loved him and they were sad at heart when he was moved to St. Teresa's, Possilpark. To them, he was "just up the road" and he was not lost to them when they needed wise counsel.

Father Martin went to St. Teresa's in 1961 and remained there until November, 1973. The new church had been opened less than a year when he arrived, and it was his pride and joy. Extensive grounds surrounded the church, presbytery and parochial hall and Father John could often be seen at the wheel of the motor-mower, keeping the compound in trim. The priests who worked with Father Martin in St. Teresa's and indeed in any other parish where he laboured look back on their days with him as the happiest of their lives. There was something special about him—surely it was his childlike simplicity—he put into practice the early lesson he received as a boy, of living with God day by day. He was happy with God—intensely conscious of the presence of God, and that happiness was infectious—others caught it, like one catches the cold. Father Martin was really at home in St. Teresa's, among many of the people he had known from his early days in Glasgow—the people he had grown up with—and it was a sad day indeed for all the people in Possilpark who knew him so well and loved him so much when he was asked to return to St. Patrick's as parish priest. However, feeling sad no doubt at having to move once again, he was obedient to the call of authority and returned to the parish where he worked for so long in his early days.

Glasgow has seen many changes in its long history, but no area has changed so much as the Anderston district. Bulldozers and other mechanical earthmovers have bitten into the soil and carved out roadways to by-pass the city and make way for speeding transport to cross the Clyde—all in the name of progress. Progress sometimes destroys and the great parish of St. Patrick's suffered more than any other in the city. From being a parish of 20,000, there are now only 1,600 parishioners. The first duty imposed upon Father Martin on arriving at St. Patrick's was the demolition of the old presbytery with all its happy memories and finding some place for himself and the staff to stay. He overcame these difficulties and eventually his new home was complete. There was one thing missing from the old days—the smell from the adjacent sausage factory. So many things had changed over the years, but not Father John—he was still as zealous as ever and he never seemed to look any older. Looks sometimes belie one's inner condition and so it was with Father John. Years of unremitting toil had sapped his strength and though he never complained he was inwardly a very sick man. The skill of the finest surgeons could not undo the ravages of time and so he died on 20th March, 1979, in the seventy-fifth year of his age and the fiftieth of his priesthood.

Father John never sought honours and although on three occasions he was invited to join the Cathedral Chapter of Canons, he died as he had lived, plain, unassuming, beloved of priests and people—Father John.

Rev. Robert Doherty — 3rd May, 1979

Born at Condorrat on 16th December, 1905, Robert Doherty received his early education at St. Aloysius' College, Glasgow. He entered Blairs in 1923, and proceeded to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, in 1925.

He was ordained to the priesthood on 29th June, 1931, and was appointed as assistant priest to Holy Cross, Glasgow, where he remained until 1933. He spent some time in the Abbey of S. Andre, Lophen-Lez, Bruges, Belgium, and returned to serve in St. John's, Perth, from 1936 until 1939, and then in Our Lady of Victories, Dundee, from 1939 to 1947.

He was not able to continue pastoral duties and had to spend the rest of his life in hospitals, with the exception of his last few years, which he spent with his family in Condorrat.

He died in Bon Secours Hospital, Glasgow, on Thursday, 3rd May, 1979. He was not very well known to the present generation of Glasgow priests, but a large number of them concelebrated his Funeral Mass the following Saturday in Holy Cross Church, Croy, the principal celebrant being the archbishop himself. His remains were laid to rest in the family grave in Croy Cemetery. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Joseph Canon Gallacher — 3rd May, 1979

The death of one we know and love is always a chastening and sad event. Even when we have been prepared by lengthy illness and the visual signs of the approaching end, when it does occur it makes one pause and, perforce, think of one's own none-too-distant demise. But when death occurs suddenly one is shocked into the realisation that even the strongest among us knows not the time or the place nor indeed the circumstances.

Canon Joseph Gallacher died very suddenly on 3rd May, 1979. Characteristically, he had just made one of his many visits to the parochial school, this time to hear the confessions of his first communion class. Driving himself back to his presbytery, he began to feel unwell. His condition rapidly worsened; he had to be helped from his car and into the house. Within the hour, Canon Joe had surrendered his soul to his Maker. Holy Mother Church describes the dead in one consoling Latin word, defunctus. It means, quite simply, one who has completed his task. Canon Joe's task was twofold; his own sanctification, and the preaching of the good news of the gospel. How successfully he discharged the first part remains a secret between himself and the God he had served from his baptism to the end. Inner spiritual achievement, like fire, cannot be concealed, and manifested itself in the canon's simplicity, his perennial humility, his love for, and attention to, the aged, the sick, the dying and the children. How appropriate that death should strike as he put the final touches to the preparation of a first communion class!

As to the second part of his life's task, we can, perhaps, be more specific.

Born on the Feast of the Purification, 2nd February, 1911, he began his early education at Our Holy Redeemer's Primary School, Clydebank; then, for only one year, at St. Patrick's High School, Dumbarton. In 1924, hearkening to the call to the priesthood, he entered St. Mary's College, Blairs, where he proved to be a brilliant student, especially in the sphere of Latin, French and Greek. With never a trace of arrogance, he carried his linguistic skills lightly, almost carelessly, as a cavalier of old might sling his cloak over his shoulder. In 1928, he began his more direct preparation for priesthood in the theological seminary of St. Peter, Bearsden, where his facile mind readily assimilated the subtleties of philosophical and theological disputation. His priestly ordination took place in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, on the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul, 29th June, 1934, at the age of twenty-three years. The ordaining prelate was the late Archbishop Donald Mackintosh.

His first curacy was to the parish of the Holy Family, Mossend, where he remained for only a short time before being appointed to St. Charles', Paisley. Early in World War II, his zeal for souls and his compassion for the lads facing the hazards of war led him to volunteer for the army, and in 1940 he became a chaplain to the forces. He served both at home and abroad throughout the war. On leaving the army, he was appointed to St. Mark's, Carntyne in 1946; thereafter to St. Luke's, Glasgow, where he remained for six years. In 1953, he went to St. Martin's, Renton, before taking up his appointment to St. Barnabas', Shettleston as parish priest in 1955. In 1958, there followed a period of illness and he was on sick leave for a short time. Upon recovery, he served as assistant in St. Teresa's, Possilpark, before being appointed parish priest at St. Joachim's, Carmyle, in 1963, where he died, the call of his Master finally answered, his life's task duly completed. It was while he was in Carmyle that, in 1970, he was made dean, and in 1972 an Honorary Canon of the Cathedral Chapter of Glasgow.

The obsequies were attended by a large sorrowing congregation including many friends and relations. A large number of priests concelebrated the Requiem Mass, the chief concelebrant being the Archbishop of Glasgow. On his soul, sweet Jesus, have mercy.

Very Rev. Daniel Canon Horgan — 7th May, 1979

Daniel Horgan was born on 27th March, 1902, in Kilcummin, Killarney, Co. Kerry. He was to be moulded in that college that has given so many priests to the Church, St. Brendan's, Killarney. He began his studies for the priesthood at All Hallows College, Dublin, and completed them at St. Peter's College, Bearsden. He was ordained priest for Glasgow Archdiocese on 24th April, 1927, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow.

By happy coincidence in the plan of God, he offered his first Mass after ordination in the old St. Laurence's Church, Greenock, in a parish he was later to serve for seventeen years as parish priest.

The first twenty-one years of his priesthood were spent as curate in three Renfrewshire parishes: St. Margaret's, Johnstone, 1927-45; St. Mary's, Paisley, 1945-48 and St. Mary's, Greenock, for a few weeks in 1946 as a temporary assignment.

His eighteen years at St. Margaret's, Johnstone, were renowned for the dedication he brought to all his priestly life. He was particularly devoted to the youth of the parish and his visitation of neighbouring Howwood and surrounding area prepared him for establishing a parish there some years later. His three years at St. Mary's, Paisley, saw him pegging out the future St. Fergus' parish in Ferguslie Park. He visited every home in that extensive housing scheme.

In 1948, he received his first parish—Christ the King, Howwood and Lochwinnoch, becoming the first resident priest in that area and founder of the parish. He resided in St. Joseph's College, Lochwinnoch. His two-year stay resulted in his leaving behind a closely knit parish.

The Holy Year of 1950 saw him move to the parish of St. Fillan, Houston. There he is remembered for the special way he improved the ancient little church. The great lover of nature and wild life that he was, he was completely at home in the rural setting of Houston, and often said that he enjoyed every moment of his seven-year stay there.

In 1957, he assumed charge of St. Mungo's parish in industrial Greenock. The people of St. Mungo's to this day are mindful of all the work he did in their midst—his systematic visitation having had lasting and fruitful results.

He went in 1961 to the neighbouring and old established parish of St. Laurence where his relation, Canon William Horgan, had done such sterling work as pastor for almost forty years, 1906-45.

The people of St. Laurence's soon realised his devotion to pastoral duties. They saw his interest in the House of God being expressed in the new Lady chapel and altar; the stained glass windows over the sanctuary and entrance to the church; his decoration scheme; his introduction of planned giving and his clearing of the parish debt; his adaptation of the sanctuary to the demands of the liturgical reforms of Vatican II. His pastorate saw the opening of two new primary schools in the parish, St. Kenneth's in 1963 and St. Laurence's in 1974. St. Laurence's Social Club he opened in 1975.

He became a canon of Paisley Cathedral Chapter in 1966 and its provost in 1975.

He retired in 1978 from pastoral duties and went to Dublin to live at the Sacred Heart Residence of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Raheny. His retirement marked the end of an era of service to the Church in the West of Scotland, mainly in Renfrewshire by the Horgan family, whose motto "Foremost" was surely lived up to in Greenock. His kinsman and predecessor at St. Fillan's, Houston and St. Laurence's, Greenock, Canon William Horgan, and himself between them gave a total of 106 years service. That service was recognised by both Church and local government as seen in the gesture by Provost Freddie Fletcher of Inverclyde District Council, in sending to the Horgan family the Inverclyde plaque as a mark of sympathy.

His retirement in Dublin was short. He died on 7th May, 1979, at the Sacred Heart Residence, Raheny, surrounded by the Little Sisters who cared for him so attentively and whom he himself admired so much throughout his life. Before the removal of the remains from Raheny, Bishop John Reddington, S.M.A., retired Bishop of Jos, Nigeria, was principal concelebrant of Requiem Mass with Bishop Eugene Butler, C.S.Sp., Mgr. Matthew Kinsella, Vicar General of Paisley representing Bishop Stephen McGill, and several priests of Paisley Diocese.

Mgr. Matthew Kinsella was principal celebrant of the Funeral Mass in Canon Horgan's native Kilcummin parish church and afterwards officiated at the graveside in the churchyard immediately behind the main altar, in a grave the canon had selected the previous August. The churchyard is overlooked by the primary school he had attended and whose pupils rendered the singing during the Mass.

In the homily, Father Bernard J. Canning, assistant, St. Laurence's, Greenock, outlined the canon's career adding: "He gave fifty-one of his seventy-seven years of life to Scotland. He loved and revered the land of his adoption while maintaining his love for the land of his birth. He was always a true son of the Kingdom of Kerry and of that kingdom no spot did he hold more dearly than the ancient parish of his birth, Kilcummin. It is but fitting that his mortal remains await the general resurrection in the sacred soil of this churchyard.

"The Horgan family have lost a dear brother, a loving uncle and relative; the good people of Kilcummin, a true friend; the priests of Paisley Diocese, a loyal colleague, a priest who left his stamp on the history of the Church in Renfrewshire.

"Canon Horgan was noted for his thoroughness, his determination and strength of will. He always respected the authority of the Church and saw in it the expressed will of God for him. His thoroughness was to be seen at all levels of his priestly work. He won the affection of the people wherever he served as a priest of God. He was a priest of simple but deep faith as seen in his offering of Holy Mass—his preparation for it and thanksgiving after it. He saw in the Rosary the best expression of his love for the Mother of God. He was ever mindful of the souls in purgatory, particularly his fellow priests. His charity was quiet and unostentatious.

"The liturgy of Easter reminds all that Easter follows Calvary. Canon Horgan had his Calvary when he gave back his soul to God in death. It is said that each day should be an Easter day—a rising from the death of self and sin to the light and love of God. No Easter would be complete without the Alleluia—Praise the Lord! As a priest of God for the last fifty-two years, Canon Horgan said thousands of Alleluias in the official prayer of the Church, the Divine Office. Today let our prayer be that he will now sing an endless Alleluia to God, praising the Father through Christ the Eternal High Priest whom he loved and served so well. May the sacred soil of this ancient churchyard of Kilcummin lie lightly on him. May he rest in peace."

Very Rev. John Canon MacQueen — 17th May, 1979

John MacQueen was born at Borrodale in Arisaig, one of seven children of John MacQueen who was a stonemason on the Arisaig estate. His elder brother, Angus, studied for the priesthood and had been ordained deacon when he took ill and died. The first decade of the century was tragic for the Diocese of Argyll and the Isles in the number of young priests and students lost by death. Shortly after the death of his brother, young John went to Blairs College in 1909, as if to take his place in the priesthood. In 1915, he went to Spain and seven years later he was ordained priest by the Archbishop of Valladolid on 10th June, 1922.

After a short time in St. Joseph's, Dundee, and in St. Andrew's, Rothesay, he was appointed administrator of St. Columba's Cathedral in Oban. This was at the time when the old cathedral was due to be demolished and the new one began to rise in its place. Among the efforts at fund-raising, one of the most popular was the concerts organised by Father MacQueen along with other Scottish priests, at which he and they were the main attraction, for he had a beautiful voice both as a speaker and as a singer. Before he left Oban, the first part of the cathedral had been built and solemnly opened at Christmas, 1934. His next six years he spent as parish priest of Castlebay in Barra, at a time of comparative prosperity, and there he had the church renovated with a beautiful sanctuary and high altar installed. During this time, he served on various public bodies, including Inverness County Council and the Education Committee in particular. In 1941, he took charge of St. Andrew's, Rothesay, and there he remained until his retirement in 1966. He remained in Bute in retirement until after a long illness he died peacefully on 17th May, 1979. He had been appointed to the Cathedral Chapter in 1946.

Such were the main details of his career. As to the character of the man himself, the following tribute is written by the only survivor of the four men who were ordained priests that day in Valladolid, Canon Joseph Daniel of Glasgow: "Among the many graces which God bestowed on me in calling me to be his priest, surely not the least was his blessing me with the life-long friendship of Canon John MacQueen. We first met sixty-six years ago when I went to Blairs in 1913. In 1915, we went together with four others to the Royal Scots College in Valladolid. There, because of the very difficult circumstances of the 1914-18 War, we were practically marooned for seven long years during which time we never got home; and no new students were allowed to join us. With the ordinations and departures of our senior colleagues there were finally only six of us left to run the college. Naturally, we all became closer than brothers, and the bonds of my friendship with John became steadily stronger, forged in the happy, if somewhat stern, crucible of life in college in war-time Castile. This was climaxed by our quiet, almost secret, ordination to the priesthood in the Archiepiscopal Palace by His Grace Archbishop Remigio Gandasegui y Gorochategui on 10th June, 1922, and our first Masses the next day in the college chapel. The absence of relatives and friends from home on those two great occasions, perhaps the last sadness of our long exile, served to bring us closer together.

"On our way home to Scotland, we went to Lourdes and served each other's Mass in the Rosary Basilica in thanksgiving for our priesthood and in petition for our perseverance. Thereafter our ways parted, each to his own diocese. But 'as student, so priest', we met and corresponded fairly regularly, and went together on holiday to Ireland, to Spain and to Rome. Through the years he showed that he steadfastly fulfilled the promise of his early training in his excellent Catholic home and in the seminaries in Blairs and Spain. Endowed with a happy, sympathetic nature, he moulded himself into a completely reliable character, never deviating from his principles and ideals as a thorough gentleman and a fine priest.

"His achievements as administrator in Oban and as parish priest in Castlebay and Rothesay are like those of so many priests, mostly unrecorded, since they belong to the spiritual work of saving souls. In Oban, as the trusted assistant of Bishop Martin, he became a highly respected figure in the town, and undoubtedly gained many valuable contributions to the cathedral building fund by his eloquent pulpit appeals to summer visitors. In Castlebay, he brought great joy when he introduced electric light to the island of Barra by having it switched on for Midnight Mass one Christmas Eve in the Church of Our Lady Star of the Sea. In Rothesay his work included attention to naval units during the war, and many improvements in the church, school and parish.

"But his main concern was not with the construction and lighting of churches, but with the building up of the living Church in its living members, by bringing more light to their faith, more warmth to their love, through his words and example. In this he was, of course, fulfilling the vocation of every good priest; but in doing so he was distinguished by his expert use of the God-given charism of speech. He invariably spoke well, whether in conversation or in public, at all kinds of meetings and social occasions, on platform and in pulpit. He knew well when to be silent, but when asked to speak he usually had something worthwhile to say, and he said it with a very pleasant voice, from a well-stored mind, an extensive vocabulary, and an all-embracing charity.

"Already, as a student, he had acquired a wide knowledge of English literature and language, and in all his reading he constantly had an ear and an eye for memorable and telling phrases which he recorded and later used with telling effect in his preaching . . . to please, to teach, to persuade. Visitors would remember being completely enthralled by the canon's sermons, as were the children in the residential school in Rothesay.

"Undoubtedly his best sermon was his humble daily life, dominated by his priestly duties and especially his Mass. His calm, unhurried and devout manner in the sanctuary as he celebrated the Holy Sacrifice was a practical demonstration of those virtues which he so often inculcated in his flock—his faith, hope and love. Well did he merit the old-fashioned title of 'his reverence', for reverence is the key to his whole character and apostolate—reverence for God, for his fellow-man made in God's image, and for himself as a humble ambassador of Christ the King. It was this reverence which inspired his quiet dignity and prompted him to be so consistently correct in his speech, in his clerical dress, and in his impeccable manners. Naturally, it brought him the respect of all who knew him, rich and poor.

"A fine tall specimen of manhood with a fairly robust constitution, he was not immune from occasional bouts of illness. In Barra, far away from specialists, he suffered agonies from an internal ulcer which necessitated many journeys to the mainland and long courses of treatment. This was finally cleared by surgery in Glasgow, but in 1942, he suffered a very distressing attack of undulant fever, which left him with arthritis for the rest of his life. Because of that, and in the 1960s prolonged spells of bronchitis, he decided to retire from active service in 1966. He went to live in a little cottage at Ascog in Bute, called 'Stella Matutina'.

"For the last forty years he had the inestimable service in sickness and in health, of Mary MacDonald, his devoted housekeeper, a native of South Uist. She it was who made his presbytery a warm-hearted home, and she continued to look after him in his declining years, even when she herself was afflicted by a permanent infirmity. All who loved the canon owe her a debt of great gratitude for her devoted kindness over so many years.

"Ecce Sacerdos Magnus: the humble 'other self' of the Great High Priest: a people's priest, a priest's priest, whose very presence was a benediction, and whose friendship was a great grace.

"May Our Blessed Lady, clear shining Star of the Sea, patroness of his first parish and guardian of the cottage in which he died, guide him speedily home to the harbour of glorious eternity.

"Consociet nos, Domine, in paradiso. Hasta entonces, Juanito, adios."

Very Rev. Ferdinand Canon Tritschler — 26th May, 1979

Ferdinand Tritschler was born on 2nd May, 1904. He was baptised and brought up in the cathedral parish of St. Andrew's, Glasgow. He served on the altar and his early association with the sanctuary developed into a life-long interest in the liturgy. He entered St. Mary's College, Blairs, in 1918; his fellow students remember him as a serious student of somewhat shy disposition. In 1923, he proceeded to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1929, by Archbishop Mackintosh. His first and prolonged appointment was to St. Stephen's, Dalmuir. The parish priest was the much revered Father Brotherhood with whom Father Tritschler spent eleven happy years; he is still remembered in Dalmuir by the older generation. He was transferred in 1942 to St. Michael's, Parkhead; St. Michael's was then a flourishing parish of over 6,000 souls, benignly presided over by Canon Durkin.

The war was now in its third year and, having the prescribed maturity of years, Father Tritschler volunteered for the forces; he saw active service as an army chaplain in France, Norway and finally in Germany where he remained with the army of occupation until his demobilisation in 1946. The war years had brought great tragedy to his own family; within two years both parents died, two sisters were killed by a runaway tramcar, and a brother was lost at sea. On returning home he was given a brief appointment to St. Aloysius', Springburn, followed by a short spell in St. Mary's, Paisley. In 1947, he was posted to St. Joseph's, Greenock, as assistant to Father Barclay who was also an ex-chaplain. St. Joseph's was a tough assignment. A small bungalow in Inverkip Road had been purchased, but, as yet, there was no church. Mass on Sundays was celebrated in the Lady Alice School nearby. The other services, baptisms, marriages and funerals had to be conducted in the neighbouring parish of St. Patrick's, some two miles distant. The parish of St. Joseph's was rapidly expanding and correspondingly demanding; moreover, his health was not too good since he was still suffering from the after effects of a fairly serious car crash in Germany. In 1951, he was appointed chaplain to the Little Sisters of the Poor in Greenock; he was very much at home with the good nuns and the old folks, and there was scope for his liturgical bent.

His first appointment as parish priest came in 1957 and was to St. Fillan's, Houston; he loved this little country parish with its typical church and quaint house going back 100 years. Bridge of Weir village and the hospital were within his parish. There was always work in plenty and a fair amount of travelling to do. The pleasant countryside and the large garden attached to St. Fillan's were a source of great joy. A feature of his stay was the annual May procession within the extensive grounds.

In 1959, three parishes in the diocese became vacant owing to the deaths of Father Jeremiah O'Sullivan, Father McNicholas and Canon Hart. The latter had been parish priest in St. Mary's, Greenock, and Canon John Daniel, then in St. Laurence's, was transferred to St. Mary's. Father Barclay was appointed to St. Laurence's and Father Tritschler took his place in St. Joseph's. There was now a church in St. Joseph's; Jack Coia was the architect and it had been built during the lean post-war years when materials were in short supply, hence the building was strictly functional. There was a considerable debt on the parish and Father Tritschler set about paying it off. He decided that some internal improvements had to be made meanwhile, and so a fine cork floor was laid, an internal vestibule was created and an extensive scheme of mosaic decoration was carried out by his brother, Frank, an artist. Finally, a new organ was installed and the sanctuary was rearranged to meet the new liturgy requirements.

He was appointed Chief Religious Inspector of Schools for the diocese, an office he filled with care and competence. He was made a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter in 1972. Advancing years, however, brought problems of health and he decided to retire. This he did, without fuss, in April, 1975. The people of St. Joseph's, however, with typical Greenock warmth, insisted on a formal leave-taking and presentation. The numbers who turned out for the function and the enthusiasm they showed, testified to their regard and affection. He was ever hospitable, and particularly kind to the parish workers who much appreciated his gestures of thanks.

He retired to a little house looking over the Firth of Clyde on the magnificent esplanade in Greenock. His faithful housekeeper looked after him until his death.

The Funeral Mass was in St. Joseph's Church. Bishop McGill presided and spoke appropriately of his long and faithful service to the diocese. He lies buried in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. Requiescat in pace.

Rev. Felix McBride — 6th August, 1979

Father Felix McBride, parish priest of St. Joseph's, Dundee, died in his sleep at the Casa Grande in Boecillo in Spain, the country house of the Royal Scots College, Valladolid on 6th August, 1979. He had been in Spain on holiday with two priest companions when he had become ill and had to be admitted to a hospital in the city of Valladolid. He died during the night after his leaving hospital.

Felix McBride was born in Blantyre on 8th June, 1929, the son of Felix McBride and Annie McGurk. After receiving his early education in St. Joseph's School, Blantyre, he completed an engineering apprenticeship with the Blantyre Engineering Company. He worked with this firm until he decided to study for the priesthood. He entered the late vocations seminary, Campion House, Osterley, in 1949 and went on to St. Peter's College, Wexford in Ireland, in 1951.

His studies complete, Father McBride was raised to the priesthood in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee, on Ascension Day, 30th May, 1957, by the Right Rev. William A. Hart, Bishop of Dunkeld. He served as assistant priest in the parish of Our Lady of Victories, Forebank, Dundee, from 1957 to 1964. In that year, he became parish priest of St. Fillan's, Crieff, where he remained until he was appointed to succeed the late Provost of the Dunkeld Chapter, Canon John Malloy at St. Joseph's, Dundee, in September, 1977.

The simple and uncomplicated details of his life well reflect the man, for in every way he was a simple and uncomplicated person. His outstanding success as a pastor certainly had its origins in the untrammelled clarity of his goodness, kindness and regard for all his people. His personal holiness made him attractive to many and his humility made him completely approachable. In a special way, he had a love and care for the children of his parish. He seemed always at ease with them and they with him. His priestly influence on them elicited a childlike response to Christ and a love of all things good.

It would be an understatement merely to say that his comparatively early death came as a shock to his family, his people and his fellow priests, who, without exception held him in high regard. The sense of loss which all felt was reflected in the large congregation of priests and people which gathered in St. Joseph's on the evening of the day after his death to offer Mass for the repose of his soul. In accordance with Spanish law, he had been buried on the day of his death in the college's grave outside the little village of Boecillo by his own bishop, who had himself ordained him, in the presence of the staff and students of the college. This very fact added poignance to the con-celebration of Mass at St. Joseph's which was presided over by his lifelong friend, Mgr. John Hanlon, Vicar General of the Diocese of Dunkeld.

A week later, many of the same congregation and many more came together yet again to celebrate Mass with the Bishop of Dunkeld, who had meanwhile returned from Spain. It was clear that as they prayed for the repose of his soul, they equally thanked God for a priestly ministry so valued by all who had known him. May his generosity and kindness be rewarded by eternal life. May he rest in peace.

Rev. Hugh McGurk — 15th August, 1979

Few of the congregation present at St. Patrick's, Shotts on the morning of Saturday, 18th August, will ever forget the experience. The occasion was the funeral of the parish priest, Father Hugh McGurk, who had died with stunning suddenness around midday on the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary after a full morning of parish duty. From the first full-throated and touching chorus of the entrance hymn, "Then sings my soul, my Saviour God to thee: How great thou art, how great thou art" until the final poignant refrain at the graveside of the traditional paean of the faith, "We will be true to thee till death", it was a moving, tearful, soul-stirring yet joyous occasion. The people of St. Patrick's may be exceptional in devotion to their clergy; but all Shotts would insist that Father McGurk was an exceptional priest.

Hugh McGurk was born in New Stevenston, Lanarkshire, on 9th July, 1919. He was the elder son of a distinguished family which gave one daughter to religion, two to the teaching profession and its two sons to the priesthood. After attending school in Carfin, New Stevenston and Motherwell, he went to Blairs College in August, 1934. Having completed his course there, he was sent to the Scots College, Rome, in October, 1938. After only two years he was back in Scotland due to the impending entry of Italy into World War II.

He completed his philosophy at Blairs and his theology at St. Peter's College, then at Bearsden.

After ordination on 29th June, 1945, Father McGurk was appointed curate at St. John's, Port Glasgow. It was an exacting apprenticeship, yet he ever recalled with affection his early association with such giants as Matthew Littleton, Jeremiah O'Sullivan, Patrick Rice and the legendary Simon Keane, the parish priest. His service there lasted for but one year yet it provided him with anecdotes of clerical life and lore which he blithely retailed throughout his life.

In August, 1946, he was transferred to the staff of St. Mary's College, Blairs, as a teacher of classics. It is not for us to judge whether or not this was the most fruitful period of his entire ministry, but we can say that it gave him tremendous fulfilment and many happy memories. He was a born teacher; patient and kindly in manner, clear and illuminating in explanation. In addition he assisted many students to evaluate and develop their suitability for the priesthood. His contribution to the community life of the staff, cut off as they were from their diocesan associates, was tremendous. More than one member of our national conference of bishops as well as many priests have the most affectionate recollections of "Hughie"—his practical jokes, his infectious gaiety and his unaffected priestliness.

He left Blairs in the summer of 1959 and, after a short period as a curate in Motherwell Cathedral, where again his gregarious instinct stimulated joy and harmony among men of differing ages, backgrounds and temperaments, he was appointed parish priest of the combined charge of Harthill and Salsburgh in 1961. He revelled in his first independent responsibility and found deep satisfaction in his frank exchanges with people who were less reticent yet no less devout than those of Motherwell. 1964 brought him to the parish of All Saints, Coatdyke. This had been a parish of great vitality and spirit but, through demolition of housing and dispersal of the people, it had—to some extent—experienced a decline. For a few years, with zealous and co-operative assistants and ready response from the parishioners, Father McGurk was able, by dedicated service, to restore that sense of identity, purpose and mission which marks our best parishes.

In the autumn of 1972, Father Hugh was appointed to the parish of St. Patrick's, Shotts. There his natural talents, supernatural gifts and mature pastoral experience combined to give his charge a distinction and benevolence which evoked immediate and full response from that sturdy Catholic community. Although he was, by temperament, conservative in matters theological, he embraced enthusiastically the pastoral changes initiated by the Second Vatican Council. The care which he lavished on the church and his efforts to deepen the liturgical participation of his congregation are a testimony to that. His last years were, in consequence, very happy. Although robust and energetic, Father McGurk was no stranger to sickness. For many years, he suffered much from a duodenal ulcer before advances in surgery brought him a relief which he relished till the end of his life. More recently, he had painful bouts of arthritis which, surprisingly, perhaps, occasioned anxiety and concern almost to the point of worry about the state of the Church. The dissensions which had marked those first years after the Council really distressed him. This was one area of life into which he did not bring his lightheartedness and jesting. It was a gracious disposition of providence that Hugh should spend the last seven years of his life and ministry with the responsive and sympathetic men and women of that old and vigorous parish of St. Patrick's.

The presence of cardinal, archbishop, bishops, clergy of all denominations, members of parliament, local councillors, practitioners of all the professions and hundreds of ordinary men and women at his Funeral Mass testified to Father McGurk's great capacity for friendship. His engaging manner, genuine interest and unfailing generosity were all brought to bear on his friends to a degree that was almost embarrassing at times. Although he was not the most prolific letter-writer, he did keep in touch with them. The telephone was his medium. Success or trouble, joy or bereavement were always seasoned by a timely call from him. His friendship was a treasure. Typically, his closest friends were priests, yet their Deo gratias for that gift of God must be echoed in the hearts of countless people. May he rest in peace.

Rev. James Francis Maxwell — 17th October, 1979

Father James Francis Maxwell was born in the parish of Drumroad, County Down, Northern Ireland, on 16th December, 1902. He went to school at St. Malachy's, Belfast, after which he spent a short time with the Salesians before going to Wexford and later to Oscott College in England to study for the priesthood. He was ordained priest in the cathedral at Newry on 16th June, 1927. His first appointment after coming to the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh was as curate at St. Alexander's, Denny. He was at Denny for two years before being transferred to St. Patrick's, Kilsyth as curate. Here he remained until his first appointment as parish priest to the Sacred Heart, Penicuik, in 1932. In the following year, he went as parish priest to Our Lady, Star of the Sea, North Berwick. In 1935, it was necessary for him to be given sick leave, from which he did not return until 1939, when he went as curate to St. Mary's, Bathgate. After two years there, it became necessary for him to go on sick leave again, from which he did not return until 1955. He was then appointed as chaplain at the Convent of Marie Réparatrice, Elie, where he served until his retirement to Ireland.

The last two years of his life, when he became a complete invalid, were spent in the care of the Little Sisters of the Poor, at their Holy Family Home at Roebuck in Dublin. It was there that he died on Wednesday, 17th October. The burial took place on Friday, 19th October, in the cemetery of the parish church in his native Drumroad.

At the Requiem Mass that preceded the burial, Bishop Monaghan recalled some of the qualities of this talented priest. He had the gift of eloquence both in and out of the pulpit. The faithful who had benefited from his preaching, long remembered with gratitude the help they had received from him in this way. During his chaplaincy at Elie, he was a great help to the sisters in their retreat work. He did much to support and further the apostolic work of the sisters.

His charming manner ensured a happy relationship with others. He was interested in people and prepared to give them his time. This meant that he had many friends, who did not easily forget the warmth and sincerity of his friendship.

The Little Sisters who attended him in his last years were very edified by his patient acceptance of his illness, the happiness of his spirit that shone through his bedridden condition and his constant spirit of prayer.

The Requiem Mass was attended by a considerable number of priests from the parishes in that area, together with a full church of parishioners. May he rest in peace.

DIARY OF EVENTS

1978 - 1979

Centenary Celebrations in Aberdeen — Sunday, 12th March - Monday, 18th September

For the centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy in 1978, the first of the cathedral Masses was celebrated in Aberdeen by Cardinal Gordon Gray with the hierarchy; Bishop Conti preached. In the evening, the choir of St. Machar's Cathedral gave a sacred concert.

In August, some 24,000 people passed through Aberdeen's Art Gallery, where items of Catholic historical interest from all over Scotland formed an exhibition for the centenary, marking the post-Reformation life of the Church.

On 17th September, the whole hierarchy led thousands of Scots on pilgrimage to Keith to honour St. John Ogilvie at his birthplace. Archbishop Winning preached, on the saint's witness of faith, at the Mass concelebrated by Bishop Conti, the hierarchy and many priests. Cardinal Gray, piped into the grounds by the Keith Town Pipe Band, brought greetings from the recently elected Pope John Paul I.

On the following day, the bishop celebrated Mass after blessing the new shrine of St. John Ogilvie in the cathedral, to mark the centenary in the presence of the hierarchy. The preacher was Father James Quinn, S.J., who was one of the vice-postulators of the cause for the saint's canonization.

Opening of the Chaplaincy at Heriot-Watt University, Riccarton, Edinburgh — Sunday, 14th May

Cardinal Gray was among the 400 guests invited to the opening of the new chaplaincy complex at Heriot-Watt University. Although the centre is spacious, it was not large enough to accommodate all who were invited, so the Service of Dedication, which was conducted in the meditation area of the centre, was relayed by closed-circuit television to a lecture theatre where the guests were assembled.

After the service, there was an opportunity for guests to go through the centre and meet the chaplains, Father J. McMahon, Rev. T. Scott, Church of Scotland, Rev. B. Cameron, Anglican, and Rev. A. Morris, Methodist.

Diamond Jubilee in Govan — Thursday, 18th May

Archbishop Winning visited St. Francis' Maternity Home in Govan, where he joined the community to celebrate the diamond jubilee of Mother Isabella Rutledge. The archbishop paid tribute to Mother Isabella's work in the order of Franciscan Minoresses.

Pro-Life Vigil in Hamilton Episcopal Church — Sunday, 21st May

Father Thomas Gibbons of the Scottish Catholic Child Care Office attended a vigil organized by the Hamilton Committee of the Society for the Protection of Unborn Children at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Auchingramont Road, Hamilton. During the periods of discussion, speakers included Phyllis Bowman, National Director of S.P.U.C. Of the four candidates at the forthcoming Hamilton by-election only Mrs. Margo Macdonald responded to the invitation to attend, although others sent prepared statements. All the candidates had answered a questionnaire based on that approved by the Scottish Catholic Lay Apostolate Council concerning not only their attitude to possible future legislation on abortion but on the rights of the infirm, religious education in schools and racial harmony.

Aberdeen Diocesan Proper Promulgated — May

In May, the Diocesan Proper Calendar, newly revised, was promulgated. The names of three saints were omitted, for lack of evidence or of relevance, but St. Gilbert, Bishop of Caithness, is restored.

Centenary of St. Margaret's, Loanhead — Friday, 26th May

St. Margaret's Church, Loanhead, was the first church to be opened in the archdiocese by Archbishop Strain after the Restoration of the Hierarchy in 1878. The original church was designed by Mr. C. Goldie and much of the £1,866 cost of land and building was provided by Lady Lothian who died in Rome before the church was completed.

Cardinal Gray was joined by Father Rhatigan, parish priest of Loanhead, Canon Mohan from Dalkeith and Fathers E. O'Brien, T. Hanlon, D. McGuinness and L. Healy and a full church to offer a Mass of Thanksgiving. In his homily, Cardinal Gray recalled the many changes, both social and industrial, which had taken place since the building of the church. Throughout the faith of the people of the area had remained firm. This witness of faith was a sure grounding for the future life of the parish.

C.M.S. National Conference at Motherwell — Friday, 26th May

This year's national conference of the Catholic Men's Society of Great Britain took place in Motherwell and was marked by a civic reception presided over by Provost Vincent Matheson and attended by Bishop Hart of Dunkeld and Bishop Joseph Devine, auxiliary Bishop of Glasgow. In his address, the national president, Mr. Arthur Keegan, stressed the present conviction in the Church that divergence of opinion is necessary for development and that an openness to one another and to those outside the Church needs to replace the sometimes inward-looking and defensive attitudes of the past. This openness, based on a confidence in God and his Holy Spirit, would have its difficulty and pain and make us vulnerable in a hostile world, but in being "the open person in each of our relationships even if that made our life more difficult" we should be following the example of Christ himself. He also asked for an understanding attitude to young people, whose problems in the main were not of their own making but were theirs by inheritance from our generation. J. McI.

New Serra Club for Glasgow — Saturday, 27th May

A new Serra Club has been formed in the north of Glasgow. Mr. Frank Metkyo, President of Serra International, travelled from California, U.S.A., to present the foundation charter to the new Glasgow North Club.

The archbishop and his two assistant bishops concelebrated Mass in St. Leo's Church, Dumbreck, with Father Francis Gallagher, Club chaplain, and Father Kevin Kenny, national chaplain from Salford Diocese. The Mass was followed by a banquet for over 200 guests. D. H.

Communications Course in Glasgow — Saturday, 27th May - Friday, 2nd June

B.B.C. and S.T.V. producers joined Father Agnellus Andrew, O.F.M., in providing three communications courses at the Diocesan Centre in Glasgow. The first two courses, of three days each, were for thirteen priests. The third course was at the weekend for the laity. D. H.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Parish of Our Lady, Stoneyburn — Sunday, 28th May

The small church of Our Lady, Stoneyburn, was crowded for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the parish. The church itself is older than the parish, having been built as an out-station of Addiewell in 1951. At that time, Canon E. Mohan was parish priest of Addiewell, and Fathers Michael Walsh and David Brown were his assistants, and served Stoneyburn from Addiewell for the two years before the parish was founded in 1953. All three returned to Stoneyburn for the anniversary, and concelebrated Mass with Cardinal Gray, Father McCullagh, the parish priest of Stoneyburn, Canon Boyle, Canon MacKeon and twelve other priests.

While he was studying at Glasgow, he also assisted at Our Lady and St. George's, Penilee. D. H.

Golden Jubilee Celebrations at Kelvinside — Sunday, 11th June

Canon Vincent O'Sullivan has celebrated his golden jubilee in the church of St. Charles, North Kelvinside, which he built. He has been in the parish for twenty-three years. Joining Canon O'Sullivan were the archbishop and bishops of the diocese, and the provost and cathedral chapter. Also present for the celebrations were Lord Provost of Glasgow, Mr. David Hodge, and the Lady Provost.

Before Kelvinside, Canon O'Sullivan was in Sacred Heart parish for twenty years and in Good Shepherd parish for seven. D. H.

Carfin Pilgrimage in Honour of St. Margaret — Sunday, 11th June

The Diocese of Motherwell celebrated the centenary of the Scottish Hierarchy at the annual pilgrimage in honour of St. Margaret at Carfin Grotto, which was attended by about 6,000 Catholics from all parts of the country. At the concelebrated Mass, Bishop Thomson welcomed the other members of the Hierarchy, together with the abbots of Nunraw and Pluscarden, and spoke of the celebration of St. Margaret's feast and of the centenary as an occasion for looking back and for looking forward. This theme was taken up by Father Charles Pridgeon, S.J., in his address, which concerned itself with the historical unity between the Church of St. Margaret and of Archbishop James Beaton, the last member of the pre-Reformation Scottish Hierarchy, and the Church of today. As the work of St. Margaret brought the Church in Scotland out of the Dark Ages, so the Restoration of the Hierarchy in 1878 marked the resurgence of that same Church after a long period of darkness. The "massive heart transplant" of Irish immigration had "taken" a century ago because of the peace and order established by the new hierarchy and a tremendous period of growth had followed, not least in Motherwell Diocese during its thirty years of existence. The Church had matured and become accepted by civil society and the nation, and although the future had its dangers there was a growing search for a deeper prayer life and a greater desire on the part of the laity to play a more responsible part in the Church's life to set against the lowering of Catholic family standards and the drop in vocations. There was some alarm and apprehension among Catholics of today, and we might be facing a trial of confidence. "But if we do resist the Holy Spirit it will be because we have failed to understand the nature of the Church which the Holy Spirit is building up into the fullness of the life of Christ."

Meeting of Catholic Education Commission at Rutherglen — Saturday, 17th June

At the conference of the Catholic Education Commission, membership of which had been increased from forty-eight to fifty-two to cope with the expanding work of its sub-committees, Archbishop Winning as president of the commission stressed that interest in Christian education could no longer be confined to Catholic schools: the Catholic community had to be fully involved in the whole future of education, as in other aspects of national life.

The main work of the commission is done in the committees on religious education, teachers and teaching, higher education, legal affairs and specialist teaching of religious education, and there are three plenary sessions each year. The commission secretary, Mr. John J. McKee, said that with few staffing problems except in special subjects and steady development of co-operation with the Scottish Education Department, current preoccupations are with the colleges of education at Craiglockhart and Notre Dame, which have good prospects, and with the future of Catholic List "D" schools.

St. Vincent's College, Langbank, Closes — Wednesday, 21st June

The section of the National Junior Seminary situated at St. Vincent's College, Langbank, was closed in June, 1978, for economic reasons; all the first and second year students who had previously been educated there were transferred to Blairs College, Aberdeen, after the summer holidays. The last eighty students assembled for Mass on the Feast of St. Aloysius for the very last time in the College chapel. The enthusiastic participation of the youthful congregation dispelled any sombre note from this historic occasion. Cardinal Gray was principal concelebrant at the Mass of Thanksgiving joined by all the bishops of Scotland with but two exceptions (Bishop Monaghan and Bishop Devine), together with the rector and staff of the College and representatives of sister colleges and neighbouring parishes. His Eminence recalled that there must have been similar feelings of sadness as Jesus closed the door at Nazareth for the last time before beginning his short public ministry: but now as then there was truth in the old saying that as one door closes another opens, for the S.V.D.P. Society in Scotland were going to take over St. Vincent's as a means of expanding their work into the 'eighties and beyond. The very large congregation which included parents, families and friends of the College together with the Daughters of Charity who had looked after the boys over the years all had good reason to offer God thanks for countless favours received by the thousands who had come to know and love St. Vincent's over its short seventeen years of existence. Former pupils with their families and friends were given a similar opportunity to offer thanks at one of a series of reunions held that same year. A souvenir volume of 164 pages with over 100 illustrations was produced to mark the occasion by the rector, Father Maurice Ward.

Nine Silver Jubilarians in Glasgow — June

This year, nine Glasgow priests have celebrated the silver jubilee of their ordinations to the priesthood, most of them this month:

Opening of St. Vincent's Centre, Langbank — Saturday, 1st July

The S.V.D.P. Society in Scotland took possession as new tenants of the former Junior Seminary at Langbank a few days after the last students had left. With no change in the name of their patron, St. Vincent de Paul, with the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul remaining to assist for the experimental period and with the former rector, Father Maurice Ward, staying on as resident director of the Centre there were signs of hope for the future, though no one concerned was under any illusions but that the months ahead would be difficult. This was quite a new venture for everyone. Six months previously, a Special Works conference of the S.V.D.P. Society for Langbank had been set up by the National Council under the presidency of Mr. Tom Delaney. He gathered a team of brothers and sisters from various parts of the country and enlisted the support of all Vincentians, with a particularly encouraging response from the youth. The months of planning still left much to be done as the new Centre opened its doors to the very first visitors—a group of deaf children from Dumbarton for a week's holiday. The handicapped, the young and the elderly were all to be catered for in the months ahead, and a programme was in hand to look after the spiritual needs of school leavers, youth and adult groups throughout the winter and spring.

The Funeral of Pope Paul VI and the Election of Pope John Paul I—Sunday, 6th - Saturday, 26th August

Within an hour of the death of Pope Paul VI at 9.40 p.m. on 6th August, the news was being announced on B.B.C. Radio. Cardinal Gray first heard of Pope Paul's death from this radio bulletin and returned home to Edinburgh the next morning to make preparations to leave for Rome. Cardinal Gray arrived in Rome on Wednesday, 9th August and, during the weeks before the conclave, stayed in the Scots College in Rome. Pope Paul's Requiem Mass was held on Saturday, 12th August, in St. Peter's Square and was concelebrated by all the cardinals present.

During the days following Pope Paul's death, the cardinals met daily to take care of the routine needs of the Church.

In the afternoon of Friday, 25th August, the cardinals concelebrated Mass in St. Peter's and then entered the Apostolic Palace to begin the conclave. Cardinal Gray was the first cardinal resident in Scotland to take part in a conclave to elect a new Pope. On Saturday, 26th August, white smoke coming from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel announced the election of the new Pope—Albino Luciani, Patriarch of Venice, who took the name John Paul I.

Preparations were now made for the inauguration of Pope John Paul I which took place in St. Peter's Square on Sunday, 3rd September, at 6.00 p.m. At the inauguration, the cardinals concelebrated with the Holy Father.

Among the many dignitaries from Churches and States who attended were the Right Rev. Peter Brodie, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, and the Principal Clerk, the Rev. Donald Macdonald, C.B.E.

The next day, Cardinal Gray flew home to Edinburgh. R. H.

Ruchill Parish Prepares for its Feastday—
Saturday, 12th - Tuesday, 15th August

The Funeral of Pope John Paul I and the Election of John Paul II —
Thursday, 28th September-Sunday, 22nd October

Little over a month after becoming Pope, John Paul I died on 28th September, at 11.00 p.m. Cardinal Gray arrived in Rome on Saturday, 30th September. The Funeral Mass of Pope John Paul I took place at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, 4th October, and was concelebrated by all the cardinals present.

In the daily meetings of the cardinals before the conclave, one of the issues discussed was the growing crisis in Lebanon.

On Saturday, 14th October, the cardinals concelebrated Mass and entered the conclave.

On Monday, 16th October, at 6.45 p.m. white smoke was seen coming from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel. In half an hour, Cardinal Felici announced to the 200,000 people in St. Peter's Square that Cardinal Wojtyla, Archbishop of Krakow, had been elected Pope and would take the name John Paul II.

The inaugural Mass took place in St. Peter's Square on Sunday, 22nd October, at 10 a.m.

Once again the Church of Scotland was represented by the Right Rev. Peter Brodie and the Rev. Donald Macdonald, C.B.E.

Cardinal Gray arrived home on Monday, 23rd October. R. H.

John Paul I Blessing for Jubilarian – Friday, 29th September

Mr. Patrick Jackson of St. Brendan's Parish, who has completed fifty years of service with the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, was presented by Archbishop Thomas Winning with a Papal Blessing to mark the occasion. The Blessing was one of the few granted by Pope John Paul I, and was given to the jubilarian within a few hours of the Pontiff's death. The occasion was also marked by Mass concelebrated in St. Brendan's by the archbishop, parish clergy, and several priests who like Archbishop Winning had been members of Pat Jackson's boys' guild group. Greenock School Centenary — Thursday, 5th October

Outlining the benefits and aims of Catholic education, Archbishop Thomas J. Winning of Glasgow said: "When it comes to helping little children to grow up well, the Church says: 'We must have a place in the education of children', and that is why you have this school today."

He was preaching at a special Mass in St. Patrick's School, Greenock, marking the centenary of the school founded in East Shaw Street in October, 1878. He recalled how the great-grand-parents of the children "saved up their pennies each week from their wages and gave them to the priest who built a school for the little children because it was very important that the Church teach children the love of God and their neighbour . . ."

Dealing with the origins of the school, Archbishop Winning spoke of the debt owed to those who operated the system "a hundred years ago, fifty years ago, twenty years ago" collecting for the school each week, getting young girls to train as teachers "and getting sisters from different parts of the world to come and work practically for nothing . . ."

An artistic exhibition portrayed the various stages of the school's history from East Shaw Street to Captain Street and in 1968 to Broomhill and the six headteachers, all members of the Franciscan Sisters of the Immaculate Conception from Sister Angela Farnon in 1878 to Sister Mary Anthony Coyle, present headteacher. A thirty-page brochure was published covering the centenary of the school and falls into nine main parts and was written by Sister Mary Anthony.

“Caring Church” Week at St. Mungo’s —
Sunday, 22nd-Friday, 27th October

Pupils of St. Mungo’s Academy, Glasgow, were given an opportunity this week to see the varied work in which the Church is involved and the part they can play in it. The occasion was the latest in the series of “Caring Church” weeks, organised by representatives of many different religious orders, which have become a regular feature in the life of the archdiocese.

On the Thursday evening, there was a concelebrated Mass in the nearby church of St. Nicholas, David Street, after which the boys with their parents and families met the staff and the “Caring Church” team in the school.

Hierarchy Centenary Celebration at Abercromby Street —
Sunday, 29th October

A centenary celebration with a difference took place at St. Mary’s Church, Abercromby Street. During a special Mass, Archbishop Winning crowned a painting of Our Lady of Schoenstatt.

More than 500 people attended the Mass, a witness to the growing links between Catholics in Scotland and Germany through the Family Group Movement. The crowned painting, which was brought to Scotland four years ago, will now be on permanent display at the Convent of the Schoenstatt Sisters of Our Lady at Newlands.

Second Charity Ball at Albany Ballroom, Glasgow — Friday, 10th November

Tonight saw the second annual charity ball at the Albany Ballroom, Glasgow. This venture, the proceeds of which will go towards work with the elderly in Strathclyde Region, was even more successful than the first, showing that some of the teething troubles had been overcome.

The guests were provided with cabaret after their meal at which principal artiste was comedian, Johnnie Beattie. There was also an auction, dominated by the sale of a live bull for £2,200. It had been donated by a Glasgow butcher.

Father Francis Jaconelli, treasurer of the ball fund, said that the archbishop's idea "is that the local priests, the local minister and a local social worker will get together with Sister Jerome of the Archdiocesan Social Welfare Office to make decisions on spending the money at local level".

Archdiocesan Lay Council Group Plan — Monday, 13th November

Sister Mary Kilday, who assists Bishop Renfrew in his work among religious, has presented a new plan to the Lay Council of the Archdiocese of Glasgow. Sister Mary suggests that basic Christian community groups formed within parishes could work towards complete parish renewal. The objective of the pilot scheme would be to build a small group of selected people in each of the selected parishes. For three months they would have the special support of a visiting pastoral team. Bishop Devine, episcopal vicar for the laity, welcomed the suggestion as something which could be tried out in two or three parishes.

Unemployment Discussion at Motherwell — Sunday, 19th November

The Lay Apostolate Council of Motherwell Diocese held a talk-in in the Civic Centre, Motherwell, on the topic of unemployment. The recently-appointed Trade Secretary, Mr. John Smith, was unfortunately prevented from attending; his place was taken by Dr. Jeremy Bray, M.P., who spoke at some length about the loss of employment potential in the steel industry, the economics of creating new jobs and encouraging investment, and the need for union involvement in the shaping of the industrial future. Among other speakers were Mr. Frank Ferris, who gave the viewpoint of an employer of labour in an expanding company, Mr. Pat O'Hanlon of the electrical union, Mr. George Hogg, careers officer, and Father Frank Kennedy, industrial chaplain. The last-named spoke about the nature of work and the human problems of unemployment before those present endorsed affirmations concerned with the human dimension of economic problems, the acceptance of the principle of re-training of labour, and with the respect due in economic policies to human dignity and the environment.

Vocations Week in St. Andrews and Edinburgh — Sunday, 26th November-Saturday, 2nd December

Throughout the archdiocese, the week including the Feast of St. Andrew was set aside as a week of prayer for vocations.

Cardinal Gray opened the week in St. Mary's Cathedral and was joined by sixty priests in a concelebrated Mass. In his address to the 1,500 people in the congregation, Father Hugh White spoke about the lack of people coming forward for training as a crisis. However, the crisis was an opportunity to be bold.

On Tuesday, 28th, Cardinal Gray presided at the Vocations Mass in Kirkcaldy. The main celebrant was Father A. McNally, the dean. Father Hugh White preached on the joy of proclaiming the gospel.

In Falkirk, also on 28th, Father Keith O'Brien preached to a large congregation, mainly teenagers.

Next day, Cardinal Gray again presided at the concelebrated Mass in Tranent. Father Richard Somers was the main celebrant and Canon Connolly preached on what it means to be a priest.

On 1st December, the Borders Deanery gathered in Drygrange. Bishop Monaghan was the main celebrant at the Mass and Father Gordon Brown spoke on the theme that all Christians have a vocation by virtue of their baptism, and some are called for special service in the Church.

The West Lothian Deanery decided to celebrate Vocations Week in individual parishes. These celebrations were well attended, especially by the secondary school pupils.

Solemn Opening of St. Columba's Church, Bathgate -- Tuesday, 5th December

In less than a year from when work started on the site, the new Church of St. Columba was finished and ready for use.

The church is in the Boghall area of Bathgate and is situated on a steep slope overlooking that part of town. The whole building is anchored to the slope by a tower which forms the main entrance.

The upper level of the building has 240 seats looking down onto the sanctuary area. The lower level forms the hall but can also be used as part of the church with room for a further 150 people. On Tuesday, 5th December, Cardinal Gray opened St. Columba's in the presence of Bishop Monaghan, Mgr. Patrick Grady, V.G., Father Liam Healy, the parish priest of St. Columba's, Mgr. Sean O'Kelly, Rector of Scots College, Rome and many clergy and friends from all over the archdiocese.

In his homily, Mgr. O'Kelly noted the hard work and sacrifice of many people which had made this new church possible. St. Columba's was a sign to all of confidence in the future.

Scottish Representative at Lambeth Ecumenical Meeting -- Monday, 22nd January

Father Henry Docherty, Secretary of the Scottish Bishops' Commission for Christian Unity represented the Catholic Church in Scotland at a special dedication service for the Nationwide Initiative on Evangelism, in Lambeth Palace Chapel. Cardinal Hume and Dr. Coggan, Archbishop of Canterbury, officiated at the ceremony, described by Father Docherty as the most representative event of its kind held in Britain. Father Docherty repudiated the description of the Initiative as a "campaign"; the Initiative was essentially locally-based and inspired by the late Pope Paul's encyclical "Evangelisation in the Modern World". Statements that the Catholic Church was not "formally involved" were "unauthorised and counter-productive", and the type of renewal sought ought to be implemented by Catholics as well as others in the spirit demanded by the Second Vatican Council.

Bishop Monaghan Visits Bauchi, Nigeria — Tuesday, 30th January-Thursday, 1st March

It had been five years since Bishop Monaghan had last been in Bauchi and in that time vast changes had taken place in this part of Nigeria. A new prosperity was evident with many new townships emerging, and existing towns expanding almost beyond recognition.

Gombe had been a small town when Bishop Monaghan had opened the church in 1971 with only a few hundred Catholics in the area. Now nearly 2,000 people attend Mass there on a Sunday. In Biliri parish, the bishop was taken on a week-long tour to the many outstations served from St. Andrew's, Biliri. Then Bishop Monaghan travelled to Bauchi which is now the state capital of Northern Nigeria. Bauchi has developed to such an extent that a second church is now being considered.

The final stage of Bishop Monaghan's visit was Gambar. Here the church is growing very fast; in 1978, there were 850 baptisms in the parish alone. In Gambar, there is the Bijim clinic run by Ursuline Sisters which has treated hundreds of thousands of patients.

The work of this area of Nigeria, which is as big as the whole of Scotland, is at present undertaken by five priests, Father Daniel Simpson, Father Aidan Cannon, Father James Myers, Father Alexander Mitchell and Father Patrick Clarke, and the Ursuline Sisters.

Inverclyde S.P.U.C. — Wednesday, 7th March

Canon A. O. Barkway of the Scottish Episcopal Church, Gourock, chaired a special meeting of Inverclyde Society for the Protection of Unborn Children, in Gamble Halls, Gourock, to assess the views of prospective parliamentary candidates. The sitting Labour M.P., Norman Buchan, declined to attend.

Guest speakers included Dr. James McGarry, Southern General Hospital, Glasgow, who said he was fortunate to work in a hospital where the medical and nursing staff had very clear and high ideals as to what a maternity hospital is and for what it should be used. It is regrettable, he said, that in some hospitals part of the staff are doing everything within medical science to protect life whilst in another part of the same hospital staff are engaged in terminating perfectly normal pregnancies. He added that willingness to carry out abortions is almost always a prerequisite of appointment.

Councillor Walter Boyle, prospective Conservative candidate, said he was opposed to abortion and pointed out that abortions occur not only in Glasgow but in Inverclyde as indicated by available statistics: 1976, 223 abortions or 11.4% per 1,000 births compared with 228 abortions or 11.1% per 1,000 births in 1975. Election and Installation of the New Rector of Edinburgh University —

Friday, 9th March; Wednesday, 16th May

For the first time since the University was established in the late sixteenth century, a priest, Father Anthony Ross, O.P., was elected rector on 9th March, 1979. It had been an eight-cornered fight for the 15,000 votes of the staff and students of the University. The candidates were: Campbell Barclay, industrial correspondent for the B.B.C.; Ron Curran, Scottish National officer of N.I.P.E.; Richard Demarco, artistic director; Paul Foot, journalist; Willie Gallagher, serving twelve years in prison; Ludovic Kennedy, author and broadcaster; Fran Morrison, B.B.C. T.V. reporter and Father Anthony Ross. For the first time, the single transferable voting system was used and it was not until the fifth round of this process of elimination that Father Ross gained sufficient votes: 2,665 votes to Ludovic Kennedy's 2,400—5,500 being the total votes cast.

Father Ross started his three-year term of office on 9th March but was formally installed as rector on 16th May in the Reid Hall. Father Ross chose "Reflections on Volunteers in Social Work" as the subject for his rectorial address. R. H.

A better and deeper understanding of their faith was the aim of the Caring Church Week held in St. Augustine's, Edinburgh. The team conducting the week was led by Father H. Herrity, W.F., and comprised priests and sisters from various orders and representatives of the diocesan clergy from the St. Augustine's deanery. Plans for the week had been made well in advance: each day was to centre round the Mass. The morning started with Morning Prayer and ended with Evening Prayer taken from the Prayer of the Church. Displays of the various aspects of the life of the Church were on show in the large games hall and each class was given a new timetable for the week which placed the emphasis on the religious aspects of the week while maintaining the normal workings of the school. Even the local feeder primary schools were not forgotten. Team members visited them during the week. The actual week allotted for the event had two unforeseen difficulties: deep snow in Edinburgh which brought city transport almost to a halt and made it very difficult for pupils to get to school and the teachers' strike. However, neither of these difficulties seemed to dampen the enthusiasm of staff and pupils for the week. Cardinal Gray came to the school on the Friday to celebrate the closing Mass and to be shown round the displays—his guides for the day were the head boy and girl, Paul Burns and Maria McCourt.

Motherwell Assembly on Family Questions — Sunday, 25th March

Mr. William Docherty, Vice-chairman of the Motherwell Lay Apostolate Council, guided discussion at the annual Pastoral Assembly attended by delegates from the parishes and concerned this year with "The Family". Most of the reports and discussion turned on the question of how the Church should be involved in supporting family stability; concern for the one-parent family, the provision of family-centred liturgy, better priest-family relationships, and parental interest in school R.E. were among the questions raised.

Port Glasgow £2,000,000 School Opened — Friday, 30th March

Dr. J. Dickson Mabon, M.P. for Greenock and Port Glasgow and Minister of State for Energy, officially opened St. Stephen's High School, Port Glasgow. The school, established in 1960, became comprehensive in 1970. For eight years it operated on a split site using Highholm building and an annexe in Southfield Avenue. The annexe was refurbished and a major extension built on the same site giving what is virtually a new school for 1,400 pupils of Port Glasgow, Gibshill (Greenock), Langbank and Kilmacollm. Total cost was about £2,000,000.

The public speaking team of St. Margaret's High School, Airdrie, who won the Scottish Championship in the Knights of St. Columba competition, succeeded in defeating eight schools from England and Wales to win the British Championship at Birmingham. Margaret Lynch of St. Margaret's was described by the adjudicator, Peter Plant of A.T.V., as the finest speaker in the competition. The other members of the team were Kevin Kelly, Patrick Rolinck and Stephen Davis. J. McI.

New Archdiocesan Chaplain for the Union of Catholic Mothers — Thursday, 26th April

Father Laurence Davison, parish priest of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, was guest of honour at a social evening held by the Union of Catholic Mothers in St. Cuthbert's Hall. Father Davison was given a presentation on behalf of the Archdiocesan Committee of the Union in recognition of his twenty years as chaplain. During the evening, Cardinal Gray arrived unannounced to add his thanks to Father Davison for all that had been done over the years. The new archdiocesan chaplain is Father Anthony McNally, parish priest of Burntisland. R. H.

New National Chaplain for C.M.S. — Monday, 30th April

Father Edward Glackin, chaplain of the St. Brigid's, Newmains, branch of the C.M.S., has been named by the Scots bishops as the new national chaplain of the Society. Father Glackin brings to his new post experience in three parishes of the diocese, as well as a year spent studying catechetics at Corpus Christi College, London, and a period as spiritual director of the Royal Scots College, Valladolid. He has also acted as chaplain to John Ogilvie High School, Hamilton, and Columba High, Coatbridge, and is at present chaplain of St. Aidan's High, Wishaw. J. McI.

Solemn Opening of St. Joseph's Church, Whitburn — Tuesday, 1st May

Just a year after work was started on the new St. Joseph's, Cardinal Gray solemnly opened the church on Tuesday, 1st May, 1979. The cardinal was joined in the concelebrated Mass by Bishop Monaghan, Father McGuinness, the parish priest of Whitburn, Canon Boyle and about thirty priests from all over the archdiocese. Mr. Robert Topping conducted the choir which led the singing and Canon Boyle preached.

In his sermon, Canon Boyle said that it was not just because the previous St. Joseph's Church had been too small, nor because the town had expanded on the south side, whereas the old church was on the north side of the town, that the new church had been built. The new building served very practical needs, but was also a witness to the lively faith of the local community, and a measure of hope and confidence in the future of the Church in the area. R. H.

International Year of the Child — Friday, 4th May

Four classes of Holy Family School, Port Glasgow, raised £275 from a sponsored silence for one hour to mark the International Year of the Child. They had exceeded their target by £100 and were able to help two charities connected with children—St. Margaret of Scotland Adoption Society which received £175 and the Society of the Innocents which received £100. Sister Columba of the Loreto Sisters, who organised the project, expressed her thanks to the parents of the children for their help and enthusiasm.

Paisley Lourdes Day Rally — Sunday, 20th May

An estimated gathering of 500 heard Rev. Charles Cavanagh, St. Charles', Paisley, speak of the role of the sick in the Church in the light of the message of Lourdes, at the annual Lourdes Day rally in the grounds of Montfort House, Barrhead. Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley offered Mass and later imparted the blessing to the sick.

Father Cavanagh prefaced his remarks with a quotation from Bishop Laurence of Tarbes, in which diocese Lourdes is located, following an official investigation into the happenings at Lourdes: "It is our judgement that the Immaculate Mother of God did really appear to Bernadette Soubirous on 11th February, 1858, and on eighteen occasions at the grotto of Massabielle, near the town of Lourdes and that this apparition was invested with all the characters of truth and that the faithful may believe in the certainty of it."

Like St. Bernadette, the sick, continued Father Cavanagh, had a part to play, because they are chosen souls, chosen to share their sufferings with Christ for the Church in general and for the Church at the local level.

Bishop Celebrates Golden Jubilee — Tuesday, 22nd, Wednesday, 23rd May

Without doubt the event in 1979 that gave most pleasure to the Diocese of Dunkeld was the celebration of the golden jubilee in the priesthood of His Lordship the Bishop. In a sense it was a double celebration for at the same time Bishop Joseph McGee, the Bishop of Galloway, was receiving the good wishes of his priests and people on his golden jubilee. Before his nomination to the See of Galloway, Bishop McGee had been a priest and Vicar-General of Dunkeld.

The celebrations opened with the children's Mass for the jubilee in St. Andrew's Cathedral on Tuesday, 22nd May. Seldom if ever in its almost 150 year existence has the Cathedral witnessed such a scene of rapturous joy as the standing ovation given to the bishop by the children, teachers and clergy of the diocese.

It came after Father David Ward, Dundee University Chaplain, had read a letter of congratulations from Pope John Paul II. In the letter His Holiness associated himself with the rejoicing of the clergy and people of Dunkeld on the occasion. Expressing his love for the bishop, the Holy Father paid tribute to the bishop's devotion to God and His Holy Mother and to the Eucharist, and recalled that during Bishop Hart's episcopate in Dunkeld, many new churches and schools had been built.

Brother Bede, Rector of St. John's High School, conducted the mass choir of school pupils in the rendering of the music for the Mass. The readings were also given by pupils as was the offertory procession during which His Lordship received gifts of several spiritual bouquets.

On Wednesday, 23rd May, a packed Caird Hall gave a rousing and prolonged reception to His Lordship when he arrived at the presentation concert in his honour. After the concert, a civic reception was accorded to the bishop by the Lord Provost and Magistrates of the City of Dundee when, among the many tributes, an eloquent appreciation was paid by the visiting deputation from Wurzburg, Dundee's twin town.

The bishop sat beside Lord Provost Vaughan, with Mr. Gordon S. Watson, Chief Executive Officer of Dundee, city councillors and officials and diocesan clergy.

Present were Bishop Hart's two priest brothers, Father Andrew Hart, O.C.R., Nunraw; Canon Gerard Hart, Glasgow; his two nephews, Father Daniel Hart and Father John McAuley, and his sister Miss Norah Hart.

The concert was given by pupils of Dundee Catholic schools and compered by Brother Bede, Rector of St. John's High School.

Mgr. John B. Hanlon, Vicar-General of Dunkeld, gave a welcome to the large audience of 3,000 drawn from many parts of the diocese, which included the visiting Mainfrankendreis from Wurzburg, Dundee's twin town in Bavaria.

On congratulating Bishop Hart on the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, Mgr. Hanlon said that Bishop Hart in his twenty-four years as Bishop of Dunkeld had established fourteen new parishes and opened and blessed twenty-three new churches.

Bishop Hart had ordained more than forty priests, including Mgr. Hanlon himself, who said he was the only vicar-general in Scotland to have been both ordained and appointed vicar-general of his diocese by the same bishop. Bishop Hart's ordained priests served mainly in the diocese, but others were in America, South Africa and in missionary fields all over the world.

During his time as bishop, 31,695 people had been baptised, 11,179 couples married, and he had personally confirmed 27,912 children, figures which reflected 65 per cent of the total diocesan figures, surely a record of which to be proud.

Canon Darby Melloy, Provost of the Cathedral Chapter of Dunkeld, gave congratulations to Bishop Hart and introduced those who presented gifts to the bishop which included: from Mgr. Hanlon, a framed Papal Blessing; from the children of Dunblane, a Spiritual Bouquet; from all the schools in the diocese, a Spiritual Bouquet; from the Legion of Mary, a Spiritual Bouquet.

Two children on behalf of the Polish community, presented a ribboned bouquet of red and white carnations (the Polish colours).

Mr. Edmund Gdaniec, President, presented a cheque from the Polish Church Committee and Combatants Association.

A cheque from the Diocese of Dunkeld was presented by Mrs. Ann Scanlan, a parishioner of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Broughty Ferry. At ninety-seven years of age, Mrs. Scanlan is the oldest active member of the Diocese of Dunkeld.

Jubilee Mass for Mgr. Conroy — Friday, 25th May

This evening, Mgr. John Conroy, Vicar-General of Motherwell Diocese and parish priest of the cathedral, celebrated a Mass of Thanksgiving for the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood. Bishop Thomson presided and priests who had served with Mgr. Conroy at the cathedral concelebrated. Addressing the packed congregation, the bishop spoke of the jubilarian's life of service in the priesthood, the last nineteen years of which had been spent as vicar-general of the diocese. Mgr. Conroy, who as a student of the Scots College in Rome had gained doctorates in philosophy and theology, had previously spent many years teaching in the major seminary of the Archdiocese and Province of Glasgow at Bearsden and Cardross and during its exile at Mill Hill, London.

A reception in St. Bride's Hall followed the Mass, and the jubilee was also marked by a parish presentation and concert on Sunday, 3rd June, and a dinner-dance on Wednesday, 6th June. J. McI.

Annual General Meeting of the Union of Catholic Mothers at Newmains — Saturday, 26th May Bishop McGill of Paisley presided at the U.C.M. annual general meeting, which reported a significant increase in membership and in activities of every sort. The Family Fast Fund had produced over £3,600 and would benefit, among other objects, the Leprosarium in Our Lady's Village, Macao, St. Lucy's Home for the Mentally Handicapped in Macao, Blairs College Restoration Fund, and — to mark the International Year of the Child — mobility aids for handicapped children. Contributions to the Ecclesiastical Students' fund would be in the region of £3,000, and other causes supported by the efforts of U.C.M. branches included a fund for retired priests, cancer research, and the work of the Society of The Innocents. Concern for vocations, a central purpose of the work of the U.C.M. had expressed itself in their participation in vocations exhibitions and caring weeks.

Mrs. E. Ingram was re-elected as national president, with Mrs. P. Cunningham as vice-president, Mrs. M. Laing as treasurer, and Mrs. M. Glenday as secretary. J. McI.

Communications Mass — Sunday, 27th May

To mark Communications Sunday, the Hierarchy of Scotland celebrated Mass in St. Francis' Church, Glasgow, attended by the newly re-formed Communications Commission. The preacher was Glasgow-born Father Agnellus Andrew, O.F.M., Director of the International Catholic Radio and Television Centre at Hatch End, Middlesex. The Mass was to have been televised by S.T.V., but the broadcast was a casualty of an industrial dispute. After the Mass, a reception was held in St. Francis' Hall, at which the bishops took the opportunity of meeting many Catholics engaged in radio, television, journalism, publishing, bookselling and the arts. Revised Edition

St. Vincent's Prayer Book

A new edition of this most popular Prayer Book is in the final stages of reprinting.

The section on the Sacrament of Penance has been brought up to date to conform with the New Rite of Penance and, in addition, a number of new prayers and meditations are included.

"The use of this book, then, is mainly to back up the liturgy . . . and to be a handy ready reckoner for private prayer, visits to the Blessed Sacrament, Holy Hours — or just simply reading in the home or sick bed."

From the foreword by Bishop Charles Renfrew.

320 pp., sewn and bound in strong plastic cover with marker ribbon.

RETAIL PRICE £1.80

"GOING, THEREFORE, TEACH ALL NATIONS"

We cannot all leave home to become Missionaries in the field but we are all asked to help—by our prayers and contributions—in the rewarding work of evangelising all nations.

JOIN

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith

(SCOTTISH BRANCH)

(It's one of the Holy Father's special societies for "STAY-AT-HOME-MISSIONARIES")

TO BE A MEMBER . . .

1. ENROL IN YOUR PARISH GROUP. Give in your name to your Parish Priest or Curate.
2. PRAY DAILY FOR THE CHURCH'S MISSION WORK. Recite daily one Our Father, one Hail Mary and add the invocations: "St. Francis Xavier, pray for us. St. Theresa, pray for us."
3. HELP THE MISSIONS FINANCIALLY
 "Ordinary Members" contribute 25p a year.
 "Special Members" contribute £1 a year.
 "Life Members" make one contribution of £25.
 (*Parish Priests usually arrange for the collection of subscriptions by appointing "Promoters of the Society" in each parish.)
 You can make your contribution of £1 either in full, or in 10 monthly instalments of 10p.
 In some parishes the contributions are taken up by a weekly envelope marked "2p for the Missions."

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP

Apart from the satisfaction you will have of "doing your bit for the Missions"—

- 1) you will share in 40,000 Masses specially offered by the missionaries supported by the Society.
- 2) Holy Mass is said every day in the crypt of St. Peter's, Rome, for all deceased Life and Special Members.

"How sweet to die knowing that in life we have faithfully worked for and helped the Missions."—POPE JOHN XXIII.

PRESIDENT:

RIGHT REVEREND JAMES MONAGHAN,
AUXILIARY BISHOP OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH.

NATIONAL SECRETARY:

REVEREND JOSEPH COYLE, D.D.,
St. Joseph's, 41 Lomond Street,
Helensburgh, Dunbartonshire.

NATIONAL TREASURER:

RIGHT REV. MGR. R. HENDRY,
St. Margaret's, Roy Bridge,
Inverness-shire.

Contributions should be given to Promoter, or direct to Parish Priest.

"MORE HELP ON THE WAY..."

SURVIVE ADDS A NEW DIMENSION TO MISSIONARY AID

Please see overleaf for details.

SURVIVE, with some four dozen LANDROVER MOBILE MEDICAL DISPENSARY JUNGLE AMBULANCES supporting the Missions in a medical capacity all over the world, recognises that medical aid and pastoral care are not separate, but totally inter-related. Many a missionary priest with a parish covering perhaps hundreds of square miles, and containing some tens of thousands of people, carries the sick and dying to clinics and bush hospitals on his way to say Mass.

For this he needs to dispense the Sacraments he needs to comfort the dying—he needs to carry the Gospel to the four corners of the earth—he needs

And so SURVIVE, while continuing to provide life-saving Jungle Ambulances to Third World Missionaries, now expands its activities through SURVIVE (incorporating MIVA U.K.) to providing WHEELS FOR THE MISSIONS to carry the Gospel to the four corners of the earth.

Help us, help others SURVIVE,
 Help us, help the Missions to bring the Gospel to the World's most inaccessible places
